Acknowledgements

Special thanks to:

The last three years as a PhD student have been some of the greatest in my life. There are three people that deserve my special thanks for this. First and foremost I want to thank Patti Valkenburg who graciously invited me to join her Vici project three years ago, thereby providing me with the ability to do exactly the research I wanted to do within a fantastic learning environment. Patti, this dissertation would not have been possible without your unfailing guidance and exceptional expertise. I thank you for your kindness, patience, and unwavering support. Second, I want to thank my copromotor Jochen Peter, whose methodological expertise, intricate insights and adamant attention to detail have made an invaluable contribution to this dissertation. Finally, I want to express my sincerest gratitude to Mieke Sillekens for her persistent affection and tremendous practical and emotional support over the last three years.

Thanks to:

I owe an enormous amount of gratitude to all the teachers, coordinators, and supervisors who helped me in my research. I would like to thank: Cor Tichelhoven, Herman Polinder, Peter Lucas, Armand Lejeune, Ellen Philips, Jacqueline Kok, Petra Dorpel, José van Sloten, Jos van Son, Piet Jegerings, Jan David de Groot, Peter de Wilde, Elte de Vries, Martijn van der Tuin, Tanja Kombrink, and Gabriël Flor. I would also like to thank more than two thousand pupils from the following schools who participated in my research: Markland college Oudenbosch, Greijdanus Zwolle, Bischof Bekkers Eindhoven, Groevenbeek Ermelo, Fioretti college Veghel, Twickel college Hengelo, Sint Joris Eindhoven, Bonhoeffer college Castricum, Zuyderzee college Emmeloord, Zuyderzee college Lemmer, Veenlanden college Mijdrecht, Praedinius Groningen, and Tichelwerk Hengelo.

I want to thank my colleagues and friends from the UvA, starting with my borrelbuddies: Anouk, Anke, Joeri, Floris, Rosa and all the other regulars at the Engelbewaarder for providing some much needed distraction at the end of the week. I would also like to thank my friend Droop for designing the cover and for all these years of play. I thank Bas, Age, Dirk, Joris, Niek, Mark, Martijn, Naomi, Pep, Robin, Sander and Thijs for their friendship and help over these years. I thank my brother for his incredible memory for games. I thank my co-authors Anneke and Ruth for expanding my methodological experience beyond survey research. I thank my roommates and former roommates: David, Marjolijn, Sindy, Annemarie and especially Susanne for tolerating me while I kept them from their work. I thank the former MEPC PhD club members: Floris, Jeroen, Cem, Linda, Niels, Stijn, Todd, Koos, and Pauline for their merciless and unrelenting criticism. I also want to thank some other colleagues for their encouragement or practical advice: Vincent, Tilo, Bregje, Liesbet, René, Sophie, Ardy, and Wouter. I want to thank the former game-club members: Ed, Jeroen, Joyce, Mirjam and Tanja. I thank the boys from ICTO, the CCAM members and all other ASCoR and UvA colleagues that I forgot.

I would like to thank Mark Griffiths for his inspirational pioneering work on game addiction. I also want to thank some of the game addicts from Dutch Elite for inspiring me to pursue this line of research, and Marja and Arthur for reminding me of its importance. I want to thank Jelmer Jansma from NOVA and Daan van Alkemade from Zemblabla for my five minutes of fame. I also want to add a warm welcome to some of the people that were born while I worked on this dissertation: Suzy, Bodi, Leonne, Gijs, Luuk, Felice, Silvijn, Milo, Minke, and Sophie. Last but not least I want to thank my mother and my father for shaping me into the man I am today. To conclude, I want to thank YOU for taking the time to read this. I wish you the very best. In the words of my father: Vrede en alle goeds.
