

UvA-DARE (Digital Academic Repository)

Communication rights, democracy & legitimacy : the European Union

Hoffmann, J.

Publication date
2009

Link to publication

Citation for published version (APA):

Hoffmann, J. (2009). Communication rights, democracy & legitimacy : the European Union. Academic Publishing AG & Co. KG.

General rights

It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations

If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: <https://uba.uva.nl/en/contact>, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.

Acknowledgments

This has been quite a journey. Like all significant endeavors in my life, however, this project has not been a merely individual effort. I have stood on the shoulders of giants not only when it comes to my academic achievements. I would like to acknowledge the support, inspiration and guidance of some of the people that have shared parts of this journey with me.

First and foremost, I am indebted to my family. My mother who has brought me up in the belief that I could become whoever I would want to be, who has always backed me up in all my decisions, facilitated me in every possible way and who has given me the self-confidence and reassurance that is needed to venture into the world. My father, whose presence and unconditional support has always assured me of a safe place in the world, who has taught me to respect others and whose incurable optimism and spontaneity have not ceased to inspire me. My dear co-family Sylvia and her parents who have opened the doors of their home to me and my courageous and loving little brother Maxi whose being proud of me has been a lovely motivation. And not least, dear Gert who with his trademark down-to-earth attitude towards academia - and humanity in general - never failed to make me laugh and keep the faith that this too shall pass.

During the past three years Sjoerd has been a true companion who continuously supported me in my various projects, endured my sometimes intolerable schedules, listened to my doubts and took care I did not lose sight of life outside of the ivory tower. He even built me not only one but two (!) workplaces to harbor me during this time. His unbreakable optimism, pragmatism and love have carried me great lengths of the way. Having found a new home in the Netherlands, I have also been warmly welcomed in his family with two truly remarkable brothers, Edo and Marius, who each in their own way have given me a chance to be part of their lives and have made me feel at home. Thank you also, Marij, for your energy, openness, warmth, resilience and thoughtfulness. Dear Job, thank you for sharing the insecurities you experienced during your own PhD research – the mental picture of the type-written pages of your dissertation flying out of your open trunk on the highway to fly away irretrievably comforted me often and gave me hope that also in my case, this would someday all be a nice story to tell another doctoral student.

My deep gratitude also goes out to my fellow animals of the zoo of Guatemala who have given me refuge in their home, taught me a new language and the warm feeling of having an extended family: thank you, Karlita, Karla, Carmen and Hugo.

Some remarkable friends have furthermore made this journey possible. Johannes, who since we met about seventeen years ago, has been the ubiquitous and most loyal friend, moral compass and often invaluable technical as well as intellectual support. I have been fortunate to run into another two special people here in Amsterdam who always put friendship first: José, thank you for your music, honesty, faith, laughter and warmth that mark your unconditional friendship; Lara, I am deeply indebted to your tireless encouragement, boundless confidence in my abilities and selfless support in all matters. An unexpected new friend I have found in Aliaa who from afar has been an invaluable help in the moment most needed.

Another tight support community has been formed by the members of our PhD club. Thank you all for being a critical and constructive support network and for the immensely pleasurable work environment, culinary highlights and relaxing walks through the vineyards of the Ahrtal. Especially Danielle and the Appel family will retain my great gratitude for making these trips possible.

Last but not least, I would like to thank Cees and Seija, without whom I would not have been able to do any of this. Seija is to be admired for her caring, inquisitive ways in which she simultaneously challenges and nurtures the people she meets. Cees, thank you for encouraging me to dare this, for trusting me and granting me the greatest intellectual freedom, for your inspirational and unconventional teachings, for making me doubt, for creating many opportunities to explore my talents and not lastly for your music.

You have been a Doktorvater in the true sense of the word!