

WORDS OF THANKS

This thesis would not have been possible without the time, support and dedication of many people in Bolivia who were involved in this research project over the past four years. The numerous respondents, whose anonymity I will respect, my two local supervisors Anke van Dam and Maria Luisa Talavera and their families, my friends Ramiro, Andrea and little Emily, and many many others: ¡les agradezco mucho! I have very much appreciated the guidance and support of my two academic supervisors. I want to express my sincere gratitude to Professor Michiel Baud. You have critically and encouragingly supported my academic development over the past four years and I will not forget how you have always reminded me of the importance of ‘having Bolivia’ central to my research and book. I am also particularly grateful to my ‘daily’ supervisor Mario Novelli. You inspire me with your genuine enthusiasm and dedication, intellectual support and confidence in my work, and I hope that we can continue to work together in the future. I also want to thank the professors in the external committee, Isa Baud, Xavier Bonal, Susan Robertson and Annelies Zoomers, for taking the time to read and comment on my work.

I have been privileged to experience first-hand how critical and passionate teachers can make a difference. I am grateful to Margriet Poppema, Graciela Paillet and Paloma Bourgonje for their encouragement and trust during my academic studies as lecturers and supervisors, and afterwards as caring colleagues and friends. My close colleagues also deserve a sincere thank you; Hulya, Toni, Joosje, Inti, Magali, Sanne, Edith, Iris, the other GID-colleagues, secretariat and co-teachers, thanks for your support and our chats, lunches and precious moments of silence and writing. I am grateful for my contact and discussions with students, who stimulate my thinking and writing on critical and reflexive teachers, but also inspire me to personally strive to become one. I am also thankful for the inspiration and learning experience I gained from working with several colleagues on co-authored pieces, including Mario Novelli, Inti Soeterik, Jesse Strauss and Ritesh Shah. I also want to thank the staff members and IS-Academie colleagues at DSO/OO at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in The Hague, for your kind interest and support over the past few years. I thank Vicky Cardenas for her dedication and transcriptions in Bolivia, Joanne Lennon for her excellent editing and Julian Vargas Talavera for his translation of the summary in Spanish.

Finally, I want to say thanks to all of my dear friends – in the Netherlands and abroad – for your understanding and interest, for helping me to enjoy my life-besides-work, and for your patience, especially in the last year of this PhD-journey. I am also grateful for those who have taught me in my practices of reiki and yoga both in the Netherlands and Bolivia, which have helped me to develop and slow down at the same time. I am very grateful for the warmth and support of my family and everyone of my ‘extended Scholten-family’ on Rikjan’s side. I especially thank my big brother André – for always being there, my even bigger brother Maurits – for your bright ideas and creativity, Anne – for your sincere support and Marlies – for your curious enthusiasm. I would not be who and where I am now without the love, confidence and support of my parents Eric and Nynke, to whom I dedicate this thesis. My warmest and dearest gratitude goes to Rikjan, my favorite partner in life and travels. Dankjewel lief; for your endless support, respect, humour and love.
