

UvA-DARE (Digital Academic Repository)

Noise, neoliberalism and Iain Sinclair

Martin, N.

Link to publication

Citation for published version (APA):

Martin, N. (2012). Noise, neoliberalism and Iain Sinclair.

General rights

It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations

If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: <https://uba.uva.nl/en/contact>, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.

Acknowledgements

This project was made possible through the financial and intellectual generosity of the Amsterdam School of Cultural Analysis (ASCA), and I would like to express my gratitude to the School's directors past and present, Mieke Bal, Wanda Strauven and Christoph Lindner and to the guardians of its spirit and keepers of the keys, Eloë Kingma and Jantine van Gogh. Special thanks are also due to the staff of the Bungehuis Library for their friendliness, expertise and the provision of a welcoming place to work.

The members of the ASCA Postgraduate Theory seminar provided both the intellectual stimulation and companionship that nurtured the project's growth from thesis proposal to final draft, and I would like to thank in particular for their contributions to many memorable Friday afternoons, Alex Brown, Anik Fournier, Amanda Wyers, Asli Ozgen-Tuncer, Birkan Tas, Blandine Joret, Ella Hafsteinsdóttir, Erin La Cour, Erinc Salor, Gal Kirn, Jeffrey Pijpers, Johan Schimanski, Levent Yilmazok, Margaret Tali, Marjan Nijborg, Michaela Frischherz, Nur Ozgenalp, Papagena Robbins, Pedram Dibuzar, Pepita Hesselberth and the seminar's co-coordinator, Sudeep Dasgupta. Hugh McDonnell, Johanna Morand, Liesbeth Vries and Dan Hartley may not have attended the seminar but were generally there for the aftermath.

Special thanks are due to Aylin Kuryel, Adam Chambers and Irina Souch who proved that conference organization can be a pleasurable experience, and to my office-mates, past and present, who performed the same trick for the task of writing a Ph.D. Thankyou Seda Ali Yalcin, Carolyn Birdsall, Mel Schneider, Esra Almas, Thijs van den Berg, Tim Yaczo, Marie Beauchamps and Lisa Appiano.

Beyond the office door I have also enjoyed the help and collegiality of Rudolph Glitz, Dan Hassler-Forrest and Joyce Goggin from the Universiteit van Amsterdam's Department of English and that of my former teachers and colleagues in the Department of Algemene Literatuurwetenschap: Astrid Weyenberg, Anneleen Masschelien, Boris Noordenbos, Doro Wiese, Esther Peeren, Jan Hein Hoogstad, Joost de Bloois, Murat Aydemir, Noa Roei and the irreplaceable Ania Daleki.

Early incarnations of this project were shaped by long conversations with Rob Allen and Ciara Griffin on the Research MA in Literary Studies at the Universiteit van Amsterdam. Penny Wilson has been a tireless companion on explorations of the edgelands of London and Amsterdam. My interest in noise and Iain Sinclair reflect the influence of friends and teachers at the Universities of Edinburgh and Edge Hill including, from Edinburgh, Alison Lumsden, Wayne Price, Helga Einasdóttir, Jane Goldman, Gus McLean and, in particular, Lee Spinks who first introduced me to Sinclair's work. From my time at Edge Hill I remain forever grateful to Chris Baldick, Saleel Nurbhai, Jeannie Peters, John Sears, Steve Peet and my surrogate family, Anita and Bob Rigby.

For putting up with the trials and tribulations of this project on a more or less daily basis from its inception to its conclusion and beyond, I'd like to give special thanks to Lara Mazurski, Hanneke Stuit, Paul Caplan and Mireille Rosello. Their patience was exceeded only by that of my family: Lien, Lindsay and Jan. To them I owe the signal: the noise is all my own.