Acknowledgements

Sometimes, I still remember how nervous I was moving to Amsterdam in 2018 to pursue a PhD for four years in EU Law. But my worries were unfounded and were replaced by excitement and joy the minute I started. I am deeply grateful to the many people that made these years so wonderful.

I wrote my thesis under the supervision of a great team of academics and supervisors. Annette Schrauwen, Jonathan Zeitlin and Maria Weimer are not only brilliant academics but also deeply cared about my project. I am thankful for all the stimulating, challenging and encouraging discussions about my research we had as a group and individually, the detailed comments on my work and the mentorship they provided over the years. I would always find new inspiration and energy after talking to Annette. She is one of the most dedicated persons I know and extended this dedication to my supervision. Never was a draft too long to receive plenty of comments and never was a question too dumb for her to engage with it. I am also deeply grateful for the supervision and mentorship of Jonathan. When he took over the role as my supervisor, I was a black letter lawyer who had little knowledge of political science. Through his encouragement and guidance, I was able to develop a new way of thinking. I also have to thank Maria whose critical comments challenged me and improved my work a lot. I am grateful that she put the same high demands to my work as to her own, but also always had an open ear to my worries and encouraged me to find my own voice.

I am grateful for my doctorate committee – Maurizio Ferrera, Mark Dawson, Christina Eckes, Maarten Keune and Nuria Ramos. Thank you for reading my work and critically engaging with it. I also would like to thank all the interviewees within the EU institutions, the social partners, and national ministries for their time. The time and interest they took in a young persons' work was encouraging and challenged my perspective about a topic I deeply care about – EU social policy. I am also thankful to the team of the European Social Observatory and, especially to Bart Vanhercke, Slavina Spasova and Sebastiano Sabato for hosting me during my research stay in Brussels and for their advice. I also would like to thank Mark Dawson, the team of the Jacques Delors Centre and the Hertie School for welcoming me in Berlin.

The University of Amsterdam and the Amsterdam Centre for Law and Governance (ACELG) are excellent places to work and to do research. I am very thankful to Christina for encouraging me to apply for a PhD when I was still a shy Master student. Over the years, I learned a lot from her critical engagement with research and her way of teaching. I would also like to thank Angela Moisl, Désirée Blessing and Kim Bierhoff for their support. I am also grateful to the ACES PhD-postdoc fund and the Amsterdam University Fund (the Fonds Europa Instituut and the Madeleine Julie Vervoort Fonds travel grant) for their support during the years which allowed me to do research stays, travel to conferences and improve my work.

This PhD would not have been possible without the support of colleagues and friends. I would like to thank Marta, Teresa, Wiebe, Lys, Pramiti, Hannah, Merel and Debedatta for being not only great colleagues but also great friends. Thank you also to Sarah and Daphne for making Amsterdam a home. I also have to thank all my lovely friends in Germany for their support: to Johanna for all her daily voice messages that were invaluable during lonely home office days during Corona, to Livia, Lenchen, Annina and Florian for making sure that Leipzig still feels like home, to Vinzent for all his visits to Amsterdam, and to Tine and Nicole for all our talks.

My family is always there for me, and I am so grateful for having these wonderful people in my life. Thank you, Adrian for being the best brother I could imagine. I am really grateful that it is you who I shared my childhood with and will always remain a very important part of my life. Thank you, Mama for always being there and making sure that I know that you are proud. I am also grateful for my father on whose support I can always count. I also would like to thank the whole extended family: Philip, die van Loos: Eva who I miss dearly, Dieter and my wonderful and sweet cousins Benni, Judith and Nora, und unseren ganzen (Patent-) Tanten und Onkel: Hans and Renate, Moni, Ursi, Cacie and Reiner. I am really grateful to have met Yassine during my time as a PhD. Thank you Yassine for being you. I am looking forward to what lays ahead of us.
