Scripting Artworks: Studying the Socialization of Editioned Video and Film Installations

Noël de Tilly, A.

Citation for published version (APA):
Table of Contents

List of figures 5

Acknowledgments 11

Introduction 13

Chapter 1
Exhibiting, Distributing, and Preserving (Editioned) Video and Film Installations 27
  1.0 Introduction 28
  1.1 Exhibiting and Re-Exhibiting Video and Film Installations 31
  1.2 Distributing Video and Film Installations 40
  1.3 Preserving Video and Film Installations 46
  1.4 Conclusion: Studying Film and Video Installations as Continuums 51

Chapter 2
Scripting Editioned Video and Film Installations 53
  2.0 Introduction 54
  2.1 The Artwork’s Script 55
  2.2 Scripting Artworks 63
  2.3 Conclusion 68

Chapter 3
Making/Displaying Douglas Gordon’s Play Dead; Real Time 71
  3.0 Introduction 72
  3.1 Bringing an Elephant in the “White Cube” 74
  3.2 The Plural Immanences of Play Dead; Real Time 84
  3.3 Archiving Play Dead; Real Time 93
  3.4 Conclusion 97
Chapter 4
On the Impossibility of a Re-exhibition: Mike Kelley’s Day Is Done

4.0 Introduction 100
4.1 Mike Kelley’s Artistic Practice 102
4.2 Day Is Done and the Extracurricular Activity Projective Reconstruction series 107
4.3 The Offspring of Day Is Done 119
4.4 Alternative Configurations of Day Is Done 130
4.5 Conclusion 136

Chapter 5
On Finding a Suitable Exhibition Format: John Massey’s As the Hammer Strikes (A Partial Illustration)

5.0 Introduction 140
5.1 Giving Shape to an Idea: John Massey’s As the Hammer Strikes (A Partial Illustration) 142
5.2 Finding a Suitable Exhibition Format 156
5.3 The Plural Immanences of As the Hammer Strikes (A Partial Illustration) 162
5.4 Conclusion 167

Conclusion 171

Bibliography 181

Images
Images of Chapter 1 201
Images of Chapter 3 205
Images of Chapter 4 213
Images of Chapter 5 221

Appendixes
Appendix 1: Exhibition list of Douglas Gordon’s Play Dead; Real Time (2003) 226
Appendix 3: Exhibition list of the offspring of Day Is Done (incomplete) 228
Appendix 4: Exhibition list of John Massey’s As the Hammer Strikes (A Partial Illustration) (1982) 230

Summary 231

Samenvatting 235