Control of chronic infectious diseases in low resource settings

Hasker, E.C.

Citation for published version (APA):

General rights
It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations
If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: http://uba.uva.nl/en/contact, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.
Table of Contents:

Chapter 1. General Introduction .........................................................................................5
  Background.................................................................................................................... 5
  Tuberculosis in Uzbekistan............................................................................................7
  Visceral Leishmaniasis in India.......................................................................................11
  Human African Trypanosomiasis in the Democratic Republic of the Congo .......... 14

Chapter 2. Health care seeking behaviour for TB symptoms in two provinces of Uzbekistan .........................................................................................................................23
  An abbreviated version was published in Tropical Doctor 2008; 38: 107-109

Chapter 3. Drug prescribing practices for tuberculosis in Uzbekistan .......................33

Chapter 4. Default from tuberculosis treatment in Tashkent, Uzbekistan; Who are these defaulters and why do they default? .................................................................43
  BMC Infect Dis 2008; 8:97

Chapter 5. Why do tuberculosis patients default in Tashkent City, Uzbekistan?: A qualitative study ..................................................................................................................55

Chapter 6. Management of visceral leishmaniasis in rural primary health care services in Bihar, India .............................................................................................................69
  Trop Med Int Health, volume 15 suppl. 2 pp 55–62 july 2010

Chapter 7. Risk factors for Visceral Leishmaniasis in India; Further evidence on the role of domestic animals .......................................................................................................81
  Trop Med Int Health, volume 15 suppl. 2 pp 29–35 july 2010

Chapter 8. A new format of the CATT test for the detection of Human African Trypanosomiasis, designed for use in peripheral health facilities ................................93

Chapter 9. Diagnostic accuracy and feasibility of serological tests on filter paper samples for outbreak detection of T.b.gambiense Human African Trypanosomiasis ..........................................................................................................103

Chapter 10. General discussion ........................................................................................117
  Tuberculosis in Uzbekistan.........................................................................................117
  Visceral leishmaniasis in India....................................................................................120
  Human African Trypanosomiasis in the DRC............................................................124
  Overall conclusion: .....................................................................................................127

Summary .........................................................................................................................133

Curriculum vitae .............................................................................................................141