Party politics as we knew it? Failure to dominate government, intraparty dynamics and welfare reforms in continental Europe
Korthouwer, G.H.P.

Citation for published version (APA):
Korthouwer, G. H. P. (2010). Party politics as we knew it? Failure to dominate government, intraparty dynamics and welfare reforms in continental Europe Oisterwijk: Uitgeverij BOXPress
Contents

List of Figures and Tables

Abbreviations

1 Introduction
1.1 The Question
1.2 Outline of the Argument
1.3 Theoretical Contributions

2 Parties as Policy Choice-Makers
2.1 Party Politics as We Knew It?
2.2 Why Parties Matter Less and Less
2.3 Why We Need New Insights on Parties and Welfare Reform
2.4 Bridging Theories on Party Organizations and Parties’ Social Policy
   2.4.1 Identifying Groups within Traditional Pro-Welfare Parties
   2.4.2 The Dominant Coalition
   2.4.3 Contextual Challenges and Elite Circulation
   2.4.4 Phase I: Failure to Dominate Government as a Catalyst
   2.4.5 Phase II: Change in Dominant Coalition Composition
   2.4.6 Phase III: Modifying Internal Rules and the Party’s Policy Preferences

3 Research Design
3.1 The Value of Small-N Research
3.2 Austria, Germany and the Netherlands: A Most Similar Systems Design
3.3 The Choice of Welfare State Programs
3.4 The Choice of Time Period
3.5 Operationalizing Welfare Reform

4 Developments in Electoral Contexts in Austria, Germany and the Netherlands
4.1 Developments within Party Systems
4.2 Developments within the Electorate
4.3 Conclusion
5 The Declining Importance of Party Politics as We Knew It

5.1 Austria
   5.1.1 Pension Politics since the Golden Age 86
   5.1.2 Family Politics since the Golden Age 88

5.2 Germany
   5.2.1 Pension Politics since the Golden Age 92
   5.2.2 Family Politics since the Golden Age 98

5.3 The Netherlands
   5.3.1 Pension Politics since the Golden Age 102
   5.3.2 Family Politics since the Golden Age 106

5.4 Comparative Conclusion 109

6 How German Welfare Parties Enabled Pension Reforms

6.1 Pension Politics until the late 1980s: A Strong Position for Traditionalists within the CDU 115

6.2 Pension Politics from the Early 1990s to 1998: A Quite Strong Position for Traditionalists within the CDU 123

6.3 How’s Life after 100 Days in Government? The Marginalization of Traditionalists within Social Democracy 132

6.4 Conclusion 148

7 How German Christian Democrats Said Farewell to Famialism

7.1 The Christian-Liberal Coalition: The Dominance of Famialism Declines but Remains 151

7.2 The Red-Green Coalition: How a Change in Government Implied a Stronger Orientation towards Equal Opportunities 156

7.3 Family Politics since 2005: The Usual Party of Government is Back with an Unusual Agenda 160

7.4 Conclusion 166
8 How Dutch Welfare Parties Enabled Pension Reforms

8.1 Pension Politics since the Late 1970s: The Marginalization of Traditionalists within Christian Democracy 169
8.2 Pension Politics since the Mid-1980s: The Marginalization of Traditionalists within Social Democracy 178
8.3 Pension Politics in a Miraculous Period: Nothing is More Successful Than Success 185
8.4 Pension Politics after the Miracle: Nothing is Less Successful Than Failure 191
8.5 Conclusion 199

9 How Dutch Christian Democrats Said Farewell to Famialism

9.1 Family Politics until 1994: Politics as Usual 203
9.2 Purple Family Politics: Politics as Usual within an Unusual Coalition 208
9.3 Family Politics since 2002: The Usual Party of Government is Back with an Unusual Agenda 210
9.4 Conclusion 217

10 How Austrian Welfare Parties Enabled Pension Reforms

10.1 Pension Politics until 2000: The Gradual Weakening of Traditionalists 219
10.2 Pension Politics after 2000: How a Change in Government Implied a Stronger Orientation towards Liberalism 236
10.3 Conclusion 250

11 How Austrian Christian Democrats Still Embrace Famialism

11.1 Family Politics until the Year 2000: Politics as Usual 253
11.2 Family Politics after the Year 2000: How a Change in Government Implied a Stronger Orientation towards Famialism 259
11.3 Conclusion 264
12 Conclusion

12.1 The Main Findings 267
12.2 Relating the Findings to Theories of Welfare State Change 278
12.3 Relating the Findings to Theories of Party Organizations and Party Behavior 279
12.4 Relating the Findings to Theories of Ideas and Learning 284
12.5 Policy Recommendations 292

Appendix: Interview Partners 297

References 301

Samenvatting (Dutch Summary) 327

About the Author 337