Acknowledgements

I am most grateful to my promoters Prof. dr. Martien Borgdorff and Prof. dr. Paul Klatser for their patience, support and guidance. I also wish to thank my close colleagues Dr Maryline Bonnet, Dr Luis Cuevas and Dr Madhukar Pai who have also helped me immeasurably in constructing this thesis. Thanks also to my co-authors, particularly Drs Alexis Cambanis, Philippe Guerin, Sundari Mase, Rick O’Brien, Mark Perkins, Bertie Squire, Karen Steingart, Francis Varaine and Mohammed Yassin.

If you complete a PhD in your late forties having left school at 16 with only a handful of basic qualifications there are hundreds, maybe thousands, of people you need to thank. In addition to those named above, and in some kind of chronological order I would like to thank a few of the people who helped me and encouraged me at different stages of my career. I will miss people out, I am sorry. Here goes. My Mum and Dad for giving me a good start and letting me make my own choices, Old Owen, Denise Horsburgh, Dave Currie, Zerai Woldehiwet, Joseph Hyera, Amy Maeda, AK Hassan, Mike Stone, Ian Samuel, Tam Durie, Shug Murphy, Ian Plenderleith, Hugh Young, Clark Henriksen, John Dickson, Bill Marr, George Kelly, Ian Carmichael, Dougie Lindsay, Dave Hood, Cecile Benoit, Fatch Madamuse, Wright Chisamba, Felix Salaniponi, John Mietke, Tony Moody, John Williams, Vincent McDonald, David Warhurst, John Shao, Leonard Uiso, Frank Ngowi, CF Irongo, John Horton, Glen Tillotsen, Don Bundy, Jane Lillywhite, Richard Suswilo, Nick Kennedy, EP Msaki, Aloyce Ole Sulul, Gamaliel Kisyombe, Sadiki Eliatosha, Mzee Tem, Mary Paolo, Anne Smith, Muhid Suvari, Owen Billington, Tim McHugh, Richard Thompson, David Grant, Paul Newton, Andrew Simpson, Rattanaporn Phetsouvah, Mayfong Mayxay, Jeremy Farrar, Francois Nosten, Sheena Robertson, Magoo, Andreas Jahn, Anne Ben-Smith, Frank Mwangulu, Paul Fine, Hazel Dockrell, Rachel Thomson, Warren Sanborn, Sally Theobald, Greg Harper, Ian and Pat Hastings, Lovett Lawson, Nasher Al-Aghbari, Najla Al-Sonboli, Isabel Arbide, Jeevan Serchand, Jailson Correa, Chris Parry, Catherine Mundy, Jane Cunningham, Carl-Michael Nathanson, Johannes Sommerfeld, Ali Zumla, Jim Huggett, Christian Gunneberg, Afranio Kritski, Maria-Alice Silva de Telles, Leen Rigouts, Megan Henry, Armand van Deun, Hans Rieder, David Mabey, Richard Urbanczik, Giorgio Roscigno, CN Paramasivan, David Moore, Jean-Francois de Lavison, Veronique Vincent, Amy Bloom, Russell Dacombe, Anjie Holt, Rachel Bauquerez , Christy Hanson, Eliane Beyer, Irene Struiksma and Petra Lampe.

Special thanks are due to Professors Gordon Scott, Stephen Gillespie, Nicholas White and Rosanna Peeling who each gave me exceptional opportunities to develop my career and to Professor Anthony Harries who has been a constant source of support and inspiration since the early days in Malawi.

Above all, I would like to thank my wife Linda for her love, companionship, support and understanding over the last 24 years, 4 continents, 10 homes, years of being apart, a part-time MSc and a previous failed attempt at a part-time PhD. I would like to thank our daughter, Marina, for her encouragement and for seeing the funny side to her Dad forever trying to finish his PhD. I am very proud of her. This thesis could not have been completed without them being there.
