For the love of experience: changing the experience economy discourse
Snel, J.M.C.

Citation for published version (APA):
Snel, J. M. C. (2011). For the love of experience: changing the experience economy discourse

General rights
It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations
If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: http://uba.uva.nl/en/contact, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.

UvA-DARE is a service provided by the library of the University of Amsterdam (http://dare.uva.nl)
Figures

Figure 1.1 – Progression of Value (Pine and Gilmore, 1999, p.72).................................25
Figure 1.2 – The objectivistic perspective within the three approaches of experience...........30
Figure 1.3 – Research model according to Verschuren and Doorewaard (1998)................35
Figure 1.4 – Research outline..........................................................................................36

Figure 2.1 – Three processes that are part of dematerialization ........................................47
Figure 2.2 – Dematerialization of economic offerings (after Pine & Gilmore, 1999)...........48
Figure 2.3 – Environment-centred definitions of experience, with distinction between core and conditions........................................................................................................................................60
Figure 2.4 – Effect-centred definitions of experience, with distinction between core and conditions...62
Figure 2.5 – Encounter-centred definitions of experience, with distinction between core and conditions ........................................................................................................................................64
Figure 2.6 – Three components of the definition of experience........................................65
Figure 2.7 – Aspects of experiences in a broader context of dematerialization.....................66
Figure 2.8 – Scale of market entities (Shostack, 1977, p. 77) ..............................................70
Figure 2.9 – Goods-Services-Experience Continuum (O’Sullivan & Spangler, 1998, p. 19)....71
Figure 2.10 – The weight of objective features versus subjective responses in consumption experiences (Addis and Holbrook, 2001, p. 58) ..................................................................................................................83
Figure 2.11 – The emotion process (based on Desmet and Hekkert model of product emotions (Desmet et. al., 2001)) ..................................................................................................................86
Figure 2.12 – The activity dimension..............................................................................90
Figure 2.13 – Continuums of interactivity (Shedroff, 1994)..................................................91
Figure 2.14 – The experience realms (Pine & Gilmore, 1999, p.30)......................................95
Figure 2.15 – Levels of intensity with which insideness and outsideness are experienced (based on Relph, 1976, pp. 50-55)...............................................................................................96
Figure 2.16 – Change in value exchanges between organization and individual................103

Figure 3.1 – Vicarious experiences are an in-between type of experiences, between primary and secondary experiences. ..................................................................................................................120
Figure 3.2 – Primary experience versus mediated vicarious experience ............................................ 124
Figure 3.3 – Observational vicarious experiences ................................................................................. 126
Figure 3.4 – Simulated and immersive vicarious experience ................................................................. 128
Figure 3.5 – Tree diagram of varieties of vicarious experience ............................................................... 130
Figure 3.6 – Experiential Learning Cycle (Kolb, 1984) ........................................................................... 139
Figure 3.7 – The temporal difference between an Erlebnis and an Erfahrung ........................................ 145
Figure 3.8 – Differences in impact between meaningful and integrative experiences .............................. 149
Figure 3.9 – The spectrum of experience-concepts .................................................................................. 151

Figure 4.1 – Convergent and Divergent problems after Laurel’s Flying Wedge (1993) ......................... 182
Figure 4.2 – Spectrum of experience concepts related to surface and deep approaches to learning ... 190
Figure 4.3 – The Self-Determination Continuum showing types of motivation with their regulatory styles and perceived loci of causality (Ryan & Deci, 2000, p.72) .............................. 192
Figure 4.4 – Locus of causality for different concepts of experience ................................................. 195

Figure 5.1 – Customer Value Equation (Heskett et al, 1997, p.40) ....................................................... 203
Figure 5.2 – Expectations of SEC-characteristics in different phases of the consumption process .... 211
Figure 5.3 – Rivalry/Excludability matrix ............................................................................................... 213
Figure 5.4 – Dematerialization causes a shift towards non-rivalry ...................................................... 215
Figure 5.5 – Forces working for and against excludability ................................................................. 216
Figure 5.6 – Change in commerce because of growing role of individuals ........................................ 220
Figure 5.7 – Virtuous cycle of human capital (after Ratchford’s (2001) theory of Human Capital) ............................................................................................................................... 224
Figure 5.8 – Focus on non-rivalry because of non-practical nature of experience-interests ............... 232
Figure 5.9 – Modes of Encounter (based on Seamon, 1979) ................................................................. 237
Figure 5.10 – Connection between first role for organizations and conceptualizations of experience .......................................................................................................................... 245
Figure 5.11 – Connection between second role for organizations and conceptualizations of experience .......................................................................................................................... 247
Figure 5.12 – Connection between third role for organizations and conceptualizations of experience .......................................................................................................................... 248
Figure 7.1 – Main and subthemes emerged from interviews ..................................................... 275
Figure 7.2 – Engagement and subthemes .............................................................................. 277
Figure 7.3 – Elements of subtheme ‘Talking about it’ ............................................................ 278
Figure 7.4 – Elements of subtheme ‘Relation vs. calculation’ .............................................. 283
Figure 7.5 – Elements of subtheme ‘Being pulled by your feathers’ ..................................... 289
Figure 7.6 – Elements of subtheme ‘Knitted cloth’ ................................................................. 294
Figure 7.7 – Lessons to be learned in relation to Engagement .............................................. 304
Figure 7.8 – Direction and subthemes .................................................................................. 307
Figure 7.9 – Elements of subtheme ‘Not getting on that bus’ .............................................. 308
Figure 7.10 – Elements of subtheme ‘The image of the sower’ ............................................. 314
Figure 7.11 – Elements of subtheme ‘Here’s a bike and go’ ................................................ 320
Figure 7.12 – Elements of subtheme ‘What movie you’re in’ .............................................. 325
Figure 7.13 – Lessons to be learned in relation to Direction .............................................. 335
Figure 7.14 – Investment and subthemes .............................................................................. 338
Figure 7.15 – Elements of subtheme ‘Knowledge from out of the wall’ ............................... 340
Figure 7.16 – Elements of subtheme ‘Pressure cooker’ ....................................................... 346
Figure 7.17 – Elements of subtheme ‘Climbing frame’ ....................................................... 351
Figure 7.18 – Elements of subtheme ‘New oxygen’ ............................................................. 354
Figure 7.19 – Lessons to be learned in relation to Investment ........................................... 359