For the love of experience: changing the experience economy discourse

Snel, J.M.C.

Citation for published version (APA):

General rights
It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations
If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: http://uba.uva.nl/en/contact, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.
Figures

Figure 1.1 – Progression of Value (Pine and Gilmore, 1999, p. 72) ........................................... 25
Figure 1.2 – The objectivistic perspective within the three approaches of experience ....................... 30
Figure 1.3 – Research model according to Verschuren and Doorewaard (1998) .......................... 35
Figure 1.4 – Research outline ........................................................................................................ 36

Figure 2.1 – Three processes that are part of dematerialization .................................................. 47
Figure 2.2 – Dematerialization of economic offerings (after Pine & Gilmore, 1999) ....................... 48
Figure 2.3 – Environment-centred definitions of experience, with distinction between core and conditions ..................................................................................................................... 60
Figure 2.4 – Effect-centred definitions of experience, with distinction between core and conditions ... 62
Figure 2.5 – Encounter-centred definitions of experience, with distinction between core and conditions ........................................................................................................................................ 64
Figure 2.6 – Three components of the definition of experience .................................................... 65
Figure 2.7 – Aspects of experiences in a broader context of dematerialization .................................... 66
Figure 2.8 – Scale of market entities (Shostack, 1977, p. 77) ............................................................ 70
Figure 2.9 – Goods-Services-Experience Continuum (O’Sullivan & Spangler, 1998, p. 19) ........... 71
Figure 2.10 – The weight of objective features versus subjective responses in consumption experiences (Addis and Holbrook, 2001, p. 58) ........................................................................................................ 83
Figure 2.11 – The emotion process (based on Desmet and Hekkert model of product emotions (Desmet et. al., 2001)) ........................................................................................................... 86
Figure 2.12 – The activity dimension ................................................................................................. 90
Figure 2.13 – Continuums of interactivity (Shadroff, 1994) ............................................................. 91
Figure 2.14 – The experience realms (Pine & Gilmore, 1999, p.30) .................................................. 95
Figure 2.15 – Levels of intensity with which insideness and outsideness are experienced (based on Relph, 1976, pp. 50-55) ........................................................................................................... 96
Figure 2.16 – Change in value exchanges between organization and individual ............................ 103

Figure 3.1 – Vicarious experiences are an in-between type of experiences, between primary and secondary experiences. .................................................................................................................. 120
Figure 3.2 – Primary experience versus mediated vicarious experience ............................................. 124
Figure 3.3 – Observational vicarious experiences ........................................................................ 126
Figure 3.4 – Simulated and immersive vicarious experience .......................................................... 128
Figure 3.5 – Tree diagram of varieties of vicarious experience ....................................................... 130
Figure 3.6 – Experiential Learning Cycle (Kolb, 1984) ................................................................. 139
Figure 3.7 – The temporal difference between an Erlebnis and an Erfahrung ............................... 145
Figure 3.8 – Differences in impact between meaningful and integrative experiences ..................... 149
Figure 3.9 – The spectrum of experience-concepts ........................................................................ 151

Figure 4.1 – Convergent and Divergent problems after Laurel’s Flying Wedge (1993) .............. 182
Figure 4.2 – Spectrum of experience concepts related to surface and deep approaches to learning... 190
Figure 4.3 – The Self-Determination Continuum showing types of motivation with their regulatory styles and perceived loci of causality (Ryan & Deci, 2000, p.72) ........................................................................ 192
Figure 4.4 – Locus of causality for different concepts of experience .......................................... 195

Figure 5.1 – Customer Value Equation (Heskett et al, 1997, p.40) .............................................. 203
Figure 5.2 – Expectations of SEC-characteristics in different phases of the consumption process 211
Figure 5.3 – Rivalry/Excludability matrix ...................................................................................... 213
Figure 5.4 – Dematerialization causes a shift towards non-rivalry ................................................ 215
Figure 5.5 – Forces working for and against excludability ........................................................... 216
Figure 5.6 – Change in commerce because of growing role of individuals .................................... 220
Figure 5.7 – Virtuous cycle of human capital (after Ratchford’s (2001) theory of Human Capital) ................................................................................................................................. 224

Figure 5.8 – Focus on non-rivalry because of non-practical nature of experience-interests ......... 232
Figure 5.9 – Modes of Encounter (based on Seamon, 1979) .......................................................... 237
Figure 5.10 – Connection between first role for organizations and conceptualizations of experience ................................................................................................................................. 245
Figure 5.11 – Connection between second role for organizations and conceptualizations of experience ................................................................................................................................. 247
Figure 5.12 – Connection between third role for organizations and conceptualizations of experience ................................................................................................................................. 248
Figure 7.1 – Main and subthemes emerged from interviews......................................................... 275
Figure 7.2 – Engagement and subthemes .................................................................................. 277
Figure 7.3 – Elements of subtheme ‘Talking about it’ ................................................................. 278
Figure 7.4 – Elements of subtheme ‘Relation vs. calculation’ ...................................................... 283
Figure 7.5 – Elements of subtheme ‘Being pulled by your feathers’ .......................................... 289
Figure 7.6 – Elements of subtheme ‘Knitted cloth’ .................................................................... 294
Figure 7.7 – Lessons to be learned in relation to Engagement .................................................. 304
Figure 7.8 – Direction and subthemes ...................................................................................... 307
Figure 7.9 – Elements of subtheme ‘Not getting on that bus’ .................................................... 308
Figure 7.10 – Elements of subtheme ‘The image of the sower’ ................................................... 314
Figure 7.11 – Elements of subtheme ‘Here’s a bike and go’ ....................................................... 320
Figure 7.12 – Elements of subtheme ‘What movie you’re in’ ...................................................... 325
Figure 7.13 – Lessons to be learned in relation to Direction ..................................................... 335
Figure 7.14 – Investment and subthemes .................................................................................... 338
Figure 7.15 – Elements of subtheme ‘Knowledge from out of the wall’ ..................................... 340
Figure 7.16 – Elements of subtheme ‘Pressure cooker’ .............................................................. 346
Figure 7.17 – Elements of subtheme ‘Climbing frame’ .............................................................. 351
Figure 7.18 – Elements of subtheme ‘New oxygen’ ................................................................. 354
Figure 7.19 – Lessons to be learned in relation to Investment ................................................... 359