Sacerdotes piae: priestesses and other female cult officials in the western part of the Roman Empire from the first century B.C. until the third century A.D.
Gaspar, V.M.

Citation for published version (APA):
Gaspar, V. M. (2012). Sacerdotes piae: priestesses and other female cult officials in the western part of the Roman Empire from the first century B.C. until the third century A.D.

General rights
It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations
If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: http://uba.uva.nl/en/contact, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.
Acknowledgements

Without the direct and indirect help of many people, I would not have been able to write this thesis. In the first place I would like to thank my supervisor Emily Hemelrijk, who has so carefully read and commented on even the smallest details. Secondly, I would like to thank Greg Woolf, whose help was invaluable and whose encouraging and thought-provoking remarks reminded me why I had ever decided to do a PhD. The (former) members of the department of Ancient History of the University of Amsterdam proved to be not only very friendly, but also very helpful colleagues. I would like to mention Cristina Mürer, Anna Sparreboom and Wendelijn van der Leest in particular. With them, I could not only share ideas and information, but also the problems I encountered during the sometimes difficult process of writing. Lucinda Dirven, Hans van Rossum and Marijke Gnade have given useful comments on my work. Furthermore I would like to thank Erik Goosmann and especially Sjoerd Keulen, who patiently listened to my nearly endless ranting about basically everything related to my research, and who were always ready to offer practical advice.

In addition to these colleagues and friends from Amsterdam, I explicitly want to mention Luuk de Blois, without whom I would never have started this PhD-project. Juliëtte Kars has helped me a great deal by providing me with the epigraphic material she had collected. Marina Cano López devoted some of her precious time to translate several documents from Spanish to English for me. Furthermore, I am very grateful to Jack Levell, who not only spent hours reading through my chapters, but also helped me carry on during the last difficult months, calmed me down and brightened my moods. Kathelijne van de Ven en Maartje van de Ven also had an important share in this, and were always there when I needed them most. Marieke Klomp, Nicholas Drewett and Marianne Wiersema proved to be inspiring friends who broadened my horizon and were always interested in my research. Additionally, I owe much to Ashley and Angharad, who made me smile every day again and provided me with an excellent way to relax from work. And last, but certainly not least, I would like to thank my parents, Renaat Gaspar and Mart Raven. They have always supported me, in every area of life, in both word and deed. Without them I would probably have had neither the love of the past, which laid the basis of this thesis, nor the endurance to finish it.