When reflecting back on the last four years, I'm reminded of John Donne's famous quote: "No man is an Island, entire of itself; every man is a piece of the Continent, a part of the main." As with anything in life, especially anything meaningful, this too was not accomplished alone. I would therefore like to show my appreciation to those individuals who have supported me as I pursued my Ph.D. and worked on this dissertation.

First and foremost, I would like to express my heartfelt gratitude to my supervisor and co-promoter Jochen Peter and my promoter Patti Valkenburg. Jochen, thank you for always believing in the value of this research and my abilities as a researcher. Some of the best moments of these last four years were spent chatting and brainstorming together on how this research would take shape. You have been an incredible mentor and I've learned more from you than you will ever know. Patti, I thank you for sharing your expertise and passion for research. Your insight and feedback were always valuable and much appreciated.

Marleen Klassen and Carmina Hidalgo Rodriguez were my research assistants. I would like to thank these two women for their hard work and dedication to this research project. Marleen, a special thanks to you for the Dutch translations of the codebook and survey, and for training the Dutch coders with enthusiasm. Carmina, thank you for your ideas and commitment during the survey portion of the project. Data collection without the two of you would not have been nearly as fun as it was with the two of you.

I would also like to take this opportunity to thank those individuals who served as coders for this project, as well as the professors and lecturers who allowed my research assistants and I to administer surveys in their classrooms. A special thanks to Sherryl Kleinman of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill (UNC-CH) for inspiring me to do a Ph.D. in the first place, and for putting me in touch with Anne Hastings for data collection. My gratitude also goes out to Charlene Regester and Karen Booth of UNC-CH.

Over the last four years, I have felt privileged to be a part of the Amsterdam School of Communication Research (ASCoR). Being surrounded by good colleagues is something I appreciate and do not take for granted. I perhaps had the most contact with my office mates, members of Ph.D. Club, and fellow researchers of the Center for research on Children, Adolescents and the Media (CCAM). Annemarie and Inge, sharing an office with you for the last two years has been a pleasure. I looked forward to seeing both of you every day, and really enjoyed our office dinners together. I would also like to acknowledge my former office mates from C0.07b: Floris, Esther, Christel, Neils, and especially Damian – who has been a trusted friend and neighbor as well. To all the members of Ph.D. Club, old and new, thank you for your feedback on previous versions of this dissertation. My gratitude also goes to the conveners: Eva van Reijmersdal, Marieke Fransen, and Doeschka Anschutz. Being a part of CCAM is also something I have very much enjoyed. Whether it was CCAM coffee, a friendly hello in the hallways, or a chat with the lovely ladies of E1.02 (the ERC room) and E1.05, CCAM has provided a sense of community for me within ASCoR, and I am grateful to have been a part of this dynamic group of researchers.

Of course it’s not all work and no play, and I feel very fortunate to have developed friendships with some special individuals who also happened to be colleagues. Reza and Karin, our Dim Sum Club has been fun and I thank you both for all the stories and laughs that we’ve shared. Johannes, thank you for the boat rides, coffees, and talks – they always provided a good boost. Lotte, I’m so glad that we met years ago when you moderated my Dutch focus groups. Our serendipitous meeting turned into a fun friendship which I am thankful for. Moniza, dinners at Thai Company, girly chats at Coffee Company, portraits, and night bus adventures – there isn’t anyone else I could have done all that with, and love the Asian-USA-Gossip Girl bond that we share. Ewa, you’re a very dear friend. My favorite moments are all the times we hung out at the Gorontalostraat and laughed over South Park while drinking tea and eating popcorn. And Anke, it is so rare to meet people in life that you can talk with about anything and everything. Our talks/walks were always refreshing, and your twinkling eyes and big smile have brightened my day on countless occasions.

While these last four years have been fruitful, living abroad on my own has been one of the most character-building experiences of my life. I therefore consider myself lucky to have crossed paths with the following individuals, who became dear friends and made life in the Netherlands more enjoyable and simply unforgettable. Liza and Alex, your humorous natures have filled my heart with joy and laughter, and you will forever be my favorite couple and two of my dearest friends. Marianne, whether it was dinner, coffee, or girl time at the Scent of Bali and the Bakkerswinkel, we never ran out of things to talk about, and spending time with you and Dave has always been heartwarming. Raj and Ravi, thank you for your friendships and for looking out for your ‘Guju ben.’ Bill, I could come to you with anything. Your caring nature and impeccable advice are two things I value. Lea, while you only lived in Amsterdam for three months back in 2008, I’m so glad we met. Spending that summer climbing and our visits to each other thereafter are beloved memories. Nadya, you are one of the most darling people I know, and visits to you in the Hague were always a breath of fresh air. Gerrie, thank you for being a guardian angel of sorts. And Jan and Irina: you have been my family here in Amsterdam. Irina, you are my soul sister. And Jan, thank you for all the wonderful conversations and teaching me so much about life. Opa vertelt!

Last but not least, I would like to thank my friends and family back home in the USA. Sneha, Shailu, Vaish, Kristen, Jigna, and Heetal: you have been some of my biggest cheerleaders. Thank you for being a living example that friendship knows no distance. Sujan and Soham, you have always been there for me with an open ear. Thank you both, as well as Hersh and Kanishka, for making visits back home fun (and delicious!). Sunil, there are no words to express the important role you have played during the last year and a half. Thank you for your love, support, and comic relief when I needed it the most. And finally, Mom and Dad, I dedicate this book to you. None of this would have been possible without your love, support, and encouragement. You are my best friends, through and through.
