Dankwoord

Writing and finishing a PhD-thesis depends on much more than the content of this book. I’m in debt to so many people in my surroundings whom I would like to dedicate some words of thank to in the following paragraphs.

First of all, I am very grateful to my promotor prof. dr. Folkert Kuiken and my co-promotor dr. Ineke Vedder of the University of Amsterdam. Both of them were very conscientious in their role as supervisors and they took great care from the earliest discussions on until the last words written in this book. They introduced me generously to their network and shared opportunities for presenting and publishing. Most important, they established a cordial environment where even in difficult times we could laugh about Folkert’s jokes.

I am in debt to the members of the scientific committee. I would like to thank prof. dr. Peter Robinson whose theory was the inspiration for this thesis but who more importantly shared his thoughts about task complexity by mail or in person when meeting at different ends of the world. I am also grateful to prof. dr. Jan Hulstijn for his critical comments and supporting words. I very much enjoyed being a member of the inspiring research group CASLA at the University of Amsterdam and the international network SLATE. Prof. dr. Kees Hengeveld I would like to thank, not only in his role as member of the reading committee but also for accompanying me during the whole process of this PhD-research at the ACLC as the supervisor of my progress meetings. Prof. dr. Kees de Bot, dr. Alex Housen, and dr. Judit Kormos I would like to thank for the reading and helpful comments but also for their openness to my work and the interesting discussions when meeting at conferences.

The Dienst Maatschappelijke Ontwikkeling (DMO) of the city of Amsterdam I am thankful to as they financially supported this research. In Amsterdam, Utrecht and the surroundings I would like to thank all the L2-learners and native speakers who participated in my studies. Similarly, I thank the different NT2-teachers and language institutes who helped me in finding my participants (e.g., INTT, VASVU, Taal- en Schakelklassen HvA and INHolland, ROC Amsterdam and many more). I am thankful to the language institute of the University of Groningen for sharing their testing material.

I thank the University of Amsterdam (UvA), most prominently the Amsterdam Center for Language and Communication (ACLC) for giving me the rich opportunities – in researching, teaching, traveling, studying, but also meeting so many interesting people – most PhD-students all over the world may only dream of. In the course of conferences I benefited from critical audiences, e.g., Peter Skehan, Pauline Foster, John Norris, Lourdes Ortega, Rod Ellis, and not least Gabriele Pallotti, Andrea Révész, Roger Gilabert and Koen van Gorp. I hope there will be plenty of opportunities to keep seeing each other and go on in the field we are unraveling.

I also thank the capacity group of Dutch linguistics of the UvA, led by prof. dr. Fred Weerman, that has been a fruitful environment to me for research, teaching, and for sharing lunch (or breakfast) with me: Jan, Suzanne, Nada, Loulou, Marian, Sven, Daniela, Robert, Petra, Ingeborg, Astrit, Leonie, and especially Hedde for his unbearable jokes and personal advices. I thank all my colleagues of the ACLC from Dirk Jan Vet and Ton Wempe (for technical help), to Bart and Raffael (for chats, jokes, and thoughts), from Jan de Jong (for giving me a good start) to Esther, Margot, Eva, Marcel, Josefien and all the other PhD-students for sharing good times.

I will in particular miss the meetings with the research group CASLA because of the critical discussions in a cordial environment: Jan, Arjen, Sible, Lotte, Marjolein, Mirjam, Klaartje, and Margarita. Rob, Nomi, and Nivja I thank in particular for their advices on statistics.

I thank my student assistants for helping me with all the transcription and coding: Kimberley Mulder, Dirk van der Meulen, Mascha Kuilenburg, Olga Abell, and above all Rachel Jobels - my favorite intern. Thanks to Tikitu for proofreading the English and my colleagues who checked the manuscript for typos. Dank gebührt dem ZFL der TU Dortmund, den English Studies der Universität zu Köln und dem DaZ-Studiengang der Universität Tübingen. Ganz herzlich möchte ich mich für die deutsche Geselligkeit in Amsterdam bedanken bei Antje, Diana, Sebastian, Roland, Luisa und natürlich Maren und Irene für ihren unschlagbaren Humor, Tanz und die konstruktiven Kommentare in allen Lebenslagen. Tot slot, dank je Catherine - omdat ik me geen beter kamergenoot en paranimf had wensen.

Meine Berliner, Dortmunder und Schweizer: Dominika (für den Umschlag und all die Jahre) mit Carsten, Nina und Milan; Süle und Thomas mit Ida, Kilian, Benedikt, Milan und Habakuk (für paddeln und so vieles mehr); Hanna, Antje, Ulrike, Eva, Ingo (und Eltern), Sebastian und Roland (für Kontakt über Zeit und Grenzen) und natürlich Florian; Verena, Ocka, Vero und natürlich Anastasia, Ilka und Julius mit Ole (für Freude in DO und anderswo); die Schwäizer Mädels und Urs.

Ik bedank mijn familie, in het bijzonder Louco en Joost, en mijn bruder Diederik met Patricia und Thierry für die Herzlichkeit und guten Weine. My father and Susie I would like to thank for their support. Het is zo fijn om jouw steun te ervaren, Papa. Davide, non saprò mai come ringraziati per tutto. Lieve Mamma en Aat, geen woorden zouden kunnen uitdrukken hoe veel dank ik voel voor jullie steun. Dit boek is aan jullie beider moeders opgedragen.
Und zu guter letzt, Nina: Ohne Dich wären Amsterdam und diese Diss sowieso undenkbar!
