Acknowledgements

There are many people who have contributed to this project or who have supported me in the process. It is because of them that I have never regretted starting this PhD trajectory, even if it took quite a bit longer than expected. I am deeply grateful for your involvement and encouragement over the last eleven years. Many of you have been crucial throughout this project. Thank you for providing me with such a stable base.

I am especially thankful to all those whose names I cannot mention here. In this dissertation you had to be hidden behind pseudonyms. Thank you for all those hours of hanging out, for your trust, for your care, and for sharing your stories. I am grateful for the way you welcomed me. I am at the same time saddened to know so many of you have passed away and many others continue to face difficulties. Our interactions affected me greatly, and I hope they had a positive impact on you as well, even if this dissertation will not directly aid you.

I also thank all others who helped me during my fieldwork. In particular, I want to thank those who cared for and about those who had become addicted to drugs: the family members, the doctors, nurses, pharmacists, security guards, and parking attendants of the methadone and HIV clinic, as well as the people working or volunteering at NGO's. I am grateful to my academic sponsor Universitas Pasundan and Dr. Awang Munawar in particular. A special thanks to Surianto, Willy, Aka, Renny, Azzam, Ria, Bakti, Abi, and Kinar for giving me a second home in Indonesia; to Roy, for all of your support over the years and your positive outlook on life; and to Wendi and Gilang for making my stay so much more enjoyable.

This project would not have been completed without the support of my supervisors. Anita Hardon, thank you for standing up for me when I really needed it, for your confidence in me and the project, and for telling me when to move to the next page. Annemarie Samuels, I cannot thank you enough. You have given me back the joy of writing through your unwavering support and encouragement. Your time, energy, and sharp eye helped me get this dissertation finished. I also want to thank Jarrett Zigon for giving me the opportunity to start this PhD and assembling a wonderful team of people. I am grateful to Trudie Gerrits and Amade M'charek, the Health, Care and the Body Programme Group, and Rachel Spronk for the support that allowed me to continue.

I especially want to thank Annelieke Driessen, Annekatrin Skeide, Carola Tize, Else Vogel, Megan Raschig, Oil Jiraporn Laocharoenwong, Stine Grinna, and Willemijn Krebbekx for your friendship, generosity, humour, care, and feedback, and for making my life much more interesting. I could not have wished for better colleague-soulmates. Many others have supported me in various ways over the years and made my PhD time tremendously more enjoyable. The list is long: Alex Strating, Ariane d'Hoop, Arnoud Zwemmer, Arsenii Alenichev, Arum Hayuningsih, Carla Rodrigues, Carolina Frossard, Danny de Vries, Daniel Guinness, Diana Pakasi, Emil Holland, Erella Grassiani, Filippo Bertoni, Francesco Colona, Hanna Henao Vanegas, Hasan Ashraf, Hayley Murray, Ildikó Plájás, Jeannette Pols, Judith Westeneng, Justine Laurent, Kristine Krause, Laura Vermeulen, Laurens Bakker, Lidewyde Berckmoes, Lieve de Coninck, Lisette Jong, Marcus Windisch, Marianna Fotiadou, Mark Hann, Matouš Jelínek, Milena Veenis, Mutsumi Karasaki, Nastasja Roels, Nataliya Komarova, Natashe Lemos-Dekker, Noëlle Steneker, Nur Isdah Idris, Nuria Rossell, Oliver Human, Prio Sambodho, Realisa Masardi, Retna Hanani, Rowan Arundel, Sabine de Graaf, Sarita Fae, Susanne van den Buuse, Silke Hoppe, Swasti Mishra, Sylvia Tidey, Tait Mandler, Tanja Ahlin, Tara Asgarilaleh, Thijs Schut, Tu-Anh Hoang, Vita Febriany, Wakana Suzuki, Willy Sier, Yatun Sastramidjaja, and Yiran Wang: Thank you all. Many thanks also to Elizabeth Zandbergen, Gezina Oorthuys, Iti Westra, Iwan

Troost, Marieke Brand, Marijn Kraak, Roeleke de Witte, Rozemarijn van der Kloet, and Yvette Jansen. I am grateful to all of you for your support and friendship. I thank Annemiek Prins, Erella Grassiani, Eva van Roekel, Else Vogel, Gijs Cremers, Luuk Slooter, Nikki Mulder, Tessa Diphoorn, Thijs Schut, and Vinzenz Bäumer Escobar of the editorial board of Etnofoor for the fun evenings and retreats and for providing me with a connection to anthropology when I almost lost it.

I am grateful to Don Mabley-Allen for the editing of this dissertation and to Stine Grinna for the cover design. Thanks also to Daphne van der Werf for all the flexibility you have offered in this meandering journey, and to Cristina Garofalo, Danny van de Poel, Janus Oomen, Leentje de Vos, Marleen Rademaker, and Muriël Kiesel for your administrative guidance during the PhD.

Finally, I would like to thank my family and friends outside of the University of Amsterdam. Aditya, Afra, Annemiek, Geerke, Ilona, Lieke, Merijn, Susan, Tosca, and Yannick offered loyal support, inspiration, and counsel. Evi, Gabri, Jan-Willem, Jasper, Josien, Maarten, Marie, Rachelle, and Sharon encouraged me throughout this project. I am grateful to Maaike and Rein for becoming an important part of our family and my life; to Ruud, Kelsey, and Rowan for your open arms and support; and to Jaap and Margareth, for always being there for me and always making me feel welcome and at home.
