Acknowledgments
My gratitude goes first to Niek Klazinga who supervised my PhD thesis for the last eight years and never gave up on me. Niek, you provided me with mentorship, intellectual guidance and friendship during these years and helped me in many ways become the man (and researcher) I became. I will always be grateful for your generosity and your patience. I am looking forward to continuing the path we took together eight years ago.

I am equally grateful to Adalsteinn (Steini) Brown, my PhD co-supervisor, who provided me with guidance and friendship and was always available when I needed him. The hardest things for me seemed so easy to you! You helped me through the toughest times, in research and in life. Steini, you are not only one of the most intelligent persons I have ever met, you are also the most generous. I am honoured to have you as a friend.

I would like to acknowledge the time and work of my doctoral committee members: Peter Smith, Misa Dzoljic, Karen Stronks, Piet Bakker and Diana Delnoij. Thanks also to Noor at the AMC who made my administrative trajectory so easy – and kept me on the right administrative tracks.

I would also like to thank those who inspired me and supported me through the last fifteen years of my professional life: Alain Amat in France, Yves Charpak at the WHO Regional Office for Europe, Tim Evans at the WHO, Enis Baris at the World Bank, François Champagne and John Wright in Canada, Peter Smith in the UK and Vahé Kazandjian at John Hopkins University in the US. Peace.

Ann-Lise Guisset and Govin Permanand are my paranimfen for the defense of this thesis. They have been on my side, always. They have also been my toughest judges. I am still nervous when they review my research papers. They always provided me with useful advice. I owe them a lot.

I have a special thought for my friend Thomas Custers who has not finalized his PhD yet but will do so soon enough. Thomas, you have always been a wonderful and supportive friend. I wish you all the best and you can count on my support, always.

Je voudrais également remercier ma famille : mes parents, Martine et Cyrille, mes grands-parents, Maurice, Mado et Renée, et ma sœur Marjorie pour leur soutien et leur amour inconditionnel. Vous faites partie de chaque minute. Cédric et Hubert, vous êtes les frères que je n'ai pas eus. Maelstrom.

Je pense également à ceux qui ne sont plus là, tout particulièrement à mon grand-père Henri Grandmaison, et à mon ami Stefanos Tsigrimanis. Vous me manquez.

My madeleines are the coffee at Sam James coffee bar in Toronto; the poems of Allen Ginsberg (Howl); and the music I kept on playing day after day when finalizing this thesis: The Smiths (Half a Person), the Field Mice (My Fabulous Friend), and Wu Lyf.
I would also like to acknowledge the colleagues and experts who contributed in different (but always thoughtful) ways to the chapters of this thesis. Chapter 4 owed a lot to the following individuals: Karen Born, Christine Brown, Erin Gilbert, Anjali Misra, Sanober Motiwala, Anmar Salman, Emily Simmonds, Emily Siu, Angus Steele, Brenda Tipper, and Govin Permanand. For chapter 5, I would like to thank Dr Michael Murray and Prof. Niek Klazinga for their time and thoughtful suggestions in preparation of the manuscript. For chapter 6, I would like to acknowledge the following experts involved in the development of the PATH project: A.D. Brown, M. Brusoni, M. Hoosen Cassimjee, B.T. Collopy, T. Custers, M. Garcia-Barbero, P. Gavilán, O. Groene, S.J. Jorgensen, V. Kalibatas, I. Kalo, J. Kjaergaard, I. Larizgoitia, P. Lombrail, E. Mersini, E. Minivielle, S. Pracht, A. Rooney, L. Sampietro-Colom, I. Finally, for chapter 7 I would like to thank the following experts for their contributions to this article: Paul Bartels, Lisa Corscadden, Vahé Kazandjian, Basia Kutryba, and Pierre Lombrail. I would also like to thank the individuals involved in the project who took the time for the interviews: D. Dicker, V. Bernard, and A. Vansina (Belgium); J. Alop, M. Einasto, and J. Lind (Estonia); P. Lombrail, A. Giraud, and V. Paillou (France); B. Fischer (Germany); E. Takacs and E. Boros (Hungary); B. Kutryba, J. Blaszczyk, and S. Ostrowski (Poland); V. Rusnakova, J. I would like to thank the team that made the production of this book possible: Beverly Ensom (editing), Ann Fothergill-Brown (formatting), Kathy Watt (layout and design), and James at Canton Print Limited (printing). Your professionalism and sense of perfection was inspiring. I also want to thank Jennifer McHugh at CIHI for her outstanding encouragement, support and guidance through the publication process, as well as Alec Boyte for his supportive feedback on my (poor) translation of the English summary to French.

Finally, the one I am the most grateful to is Jimena Ortuzar, the woman of my life, for her constant encouragement and for her patience. Thanks for being such an important part of my life and for giving us our wonderful daughter, Aube. I took way too long to finalize this manuscript, but still you supported me even if you were starting your own PhD and had to bear some of the weight of my delays. Jimena, you make me a better person every day.
