Many voices of a Turkish state factory: working at Bakirköy Cloth Factory, 1932-50
Akgöz, G.

Citation for published version (APA):
Akgöz, G. (2012). Many voices of a Turkish state factory: working at Bakirköy Cloth Factory, 1932-50
Acknowledgments

Although writing is a lonely endeavor, writing this dissertation was certainly not. I was very lucky to have the support of numerous people while preparing the manuscript you are holding now.

This dissertation would not have existed if my parents, Meliha and Haluk, did not buy tens of children’s books for me before I was even born. I owe my love and passion for the written word to them; thank you mom and dad.

Friends, who are now scattered all around the world, have been supportive both emotionally and intellectually. It is impossible to write the names of all, but few need to be mentioned. My oldest friends, Pınar, Fatoş, Seda, Emrah, Asıye, İnan and Berivan, thank you for your never ending support. My fellow trade unionists at Eği̇tim-Sen 5 No’lu Şube, it would be so difficult to endure the past two years without you. I would like to thank my comrades for the stimulation and hope they have given me. My brother deserves thanks just for who he is. My adorable cat, Behçet has brought so much joy to my world. My wider family kept supporting me, although sometimes they did not really understand what I was doing. Their helpful distraction and continuous love have been vital, especially in the last two years.

Many people read, listened to and commented on parts of this dissertation. Sevgili Hakan Hoca, Görkem, Bahadir, Ezgi, Attila, thanks for your interest in my work. Many others helped me to choose the right cover design on Facebook. My dear friend Erkan helped me with the archival research in Istanbul while I was writing in Amsterdam. Hasan and Aykut also came to my rescue when I needed documents from Turkey. I thank my proofreader Clare Donald for her careful reading of the final text.

The staff of the International Institute of Social History in Amsterdam have helped me tremendously during the research period. My special thanks go to Jacques van Gerwen, Angèle Janse, and Hans Luhrs. I miss my days at IISH tremendously and Peyman, Sara, Matthieu, Sevgi, Emre, Yelda, and Ilkay are responsible for this.
The biggest thanks of all go to my supervisor Prof. dr. Marcel van der Linden., without whose support and help I could have never completed this project. He not only came to my rescue at moments of intellectual blockage but also eased my never-ending anxiety. I have not met another person who made me feel good about my work after giving a lot of harsh critique. I hope to be able to give what I learnt from him to my future students.

My co-supervisor Prof. dr. Touraj Atabaki has been most helpful in the final stages of writing. I felt his support and care even when we disagreed. His friendship is most enjoyable and I feel lucky to have worked with him. I would like to thank the other three members of my committee, Prof. dr. Gerd de Junne, Prof. dr. Lex Herman van Voss, and Prof. dr. Willem van Schendel for their careful reading of my manuscript.

Finally, I would like to thank my partner in life, soul, love and crime, Pieter Verstraete, whose contribution went well beyond putting up with all the anguish that goes with a major intellectual undertaking. He has lived with this book for almost as long as I did. Without his constant support, encouragement, sacrifice, patience and understanding, none of this would have been possible.