Acknowledgements

I am grateful to my family and my wife, Marina, for your love and patience.

Gadi and Shiju, thank you for the opportunity to finish this work and your efforts through the last years of the project.

Han and Alfred, thank you for giving this project to me and time you devoted, especially in the first challenging years.

Jurriaan, your support was essential in the first years, bedankt.

I was lucky to meet so many nice people, these are the invaluable memories one can experienced being a student. Tamara M. Yurieva, Tatyana P. Minyukova, Alexandr A. Khassin and their colleagues from Borekov Institute of Catalysis are acknowledged for the fruitful collaboration and interesting discussions. I will never forget the unique atmosphere of the discussions and Academgorodok that is literally enclosed in the Siberian forest.

Wim, thank you for the clear explanation of the LEIS method and the interesting discussions.

The working discussions and useful advises of the STW-committee project members Herman Kuipers, Bernard Niewenhuys, Gert Jan Kramer, and Joost Frenken were highly appreciated.

I am very thankful to Vitali A. Trounov and Vasilii T. Lebedev from St. Petersburg Institute of Nuclear Physics and Gulya Torök from Hungarian Academy of Science for the opportunity to learn the neutron scattering on the spot of neutron reactor facilities in Saclé and their contribution to the chapter 4.

Many thanks to Didier and Vladimir for the explanation of the EXAFS and their contribution to the chapter 3.

Thanks to my former colleagues from UvA: Renate, Maureen, Fred, Peter, Paul, Gooitzen, Lars, Emiel, Florian, Kim, Ye, Jia, Erika, Hessel, Mehul, Anil, Laura, and all the rest for their support and assistance in/out the lab, and lively chats.

Piet, thank you for your time and advises you gave me when I have joined your group.

I am very grateful to Bernard and Ronald from Vrije Universiteit Amsterdam who accepted me as a postdoc. Many thanks to my former colleagues from Vrije Universiteit for the interesting conversations during coffee-breaks and your support in the lab: Robin, Jan, Herman, Martin, Kier, Ruud, Mathieu, Marta, Davide, Sven, Andrea, Eugene, Dana and all others.

Roman S. and Roman T., many thanks (широ дякую) to both of you for your friendship and tips through my PhD.

I am incredibly grateful to my mentors Boris V. Novikov and Alexandr S. Batyrev, I learned a lot from you during my studying in St. Petersburg.

I always feel the truly support of my friends: Georgii, Evgenyi, Andrei, Vadim.

I am also very grateful to my present colleagues from Corus/Tata Steel: Koen, Hans and Karin for their support during the final stage.
