ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Many persons contributed to the work presented in this thesis. It is an impossible task to list every person in this limited space whose contribution I value very much. I would however, like to thank the following:

This research would not have been possible without the voluntary participation of all the respondents in the studies. I wish to appreciate the tireless efforts of my research assistants; Dorothy Nabuule, Sophie Nabasirye, Sam Kakaba and later Carol Namudu. I acknowledge the administrative support of the Programme coordinator Lilian Kironde and the dedication of data cleaning from Michael Lyazi and Martin Omello. I wish to thank Dorothy Ndolire and Rita Namusoke for data entry; and Hanipha Kakooza, Carol Bako, Cathy Nalubwama and later Sophie Nabasirye for monitoring the data. I would like to thank the staff at the three KCCA clinics where the research activities took place.

Above all I wish to thank my promoter Prof Frank Cobelens and co-promoters Prof Joseph Konde-Lule and Dr Maarten Schim van der Loeff for being great teachers and a constant guide for this work. I wish to thank you all first and foremost for believing in me, the timely reviews of all my work, according me the constant support and the encouraging comments. Your friendship and strong role as supervisors were inspirational for the success of this work. I would like to thank Dr. Fred Makumbi, Dr. Noah Kiwanuka, Dr. Danstan Bagenda, and Dr. Frank van Leth for the statistical support. Thank you to my institutional supervisors and co-authors Dr. Andrew Kambugu and Dr. Mesach Mubiru. Also thank you to Dr. Souleh Semalulu and Dr. Hakim Sendagire for encouraging me to get started. I appreciate the keen interest and support offered by Dr. Alex Coutinho to this work.

I wish to express my sincere appreciation to the administration and staff of Amsterdam Institute for Global Health and Development (AIGHD) Foundation, Academic Medical Center, University of Amsterdam for all the support and cooperation. Special thanks to Dr. Nadine Pakker and later Elske Straatsma, Ester Houkes and Diana Numan for handling the practical and logistic issues. Thanks to Rita Kimera, Carmen Baank and Michael Kaggwa for office support. My gratitude to the INTERACT family of researchers for all their support and critique of this work. I wish to thank all my colleagues, the former PhD students, both in Uganda and Rwanda for the support, healthy jokes and encouragement. My appreciation to the INTERACT driver, Ismael Lubega for the many trips to and from the airport during the course of this project.

I am very grateful to my friends and extended family in Europe for their enthusiastic support. Thank you, Sophie, for the regular communication and encouragement. To Moses and Laila thank you very much for the airport pick-ups, drop-offs and for allowing me to live in your house every so often. I am very grateful for your hospitality in Amsterdam and making me feel at home. To Janat, Zamu, Njawuzi, Mark and Eriah, I am humbled by the warm hospitality you offered me during my stay in the Netherlands.

At the former Kampala City Council, I would like to thank the Town Clerks: James Ssegane, Muwonge-Kewaza and Ruth Kijjambu. I also wish to thank the staff of Health Directorate for their support and cooperation. I am grateful to Ursula and Gordon Stelman of the Kampala-Winnipeg Municipal Partnership for their encouragement all the way.

I acknowledge the Netherlands Organization for Scientific Research/Netherlands Foundation for the Advancement of Tropical Research (NOW/WOTRO) through the Netherlands-African partnership for capacity development and clinical interventions against poverty-related diseases (NACCAP) for having provided the funding for this research. I am grateful to the persons who facilitated the initiation of the INTERACT programme and created the opportunity for me to embark on this project: Prof Joep Lange and Prof Elly Katabira.

My heartfelt thanks and deepest gratitude go to my wife Fatumah. Your patience and encouragement has made this work a worthwhile experience. And to my sons: Ihsan and Imran your exciting engagements were always a healthy and welcome distraction. I am looking forward to the next addition to the family. I am indeed very grateful to the ALMIGHTY ALLAH for the life given to me and HIS guidance throughout this project.
