ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book took a long time in the writing. Consequently I have had the chance, over the years, to become indebted for the assistance, motivation, help and support of many, many people without whom this end product would not have been possible. To start naming everyone individually would take a long time. Therefore I offer this heartfelt and sincere big THANK YOU to one and all. You will know who you are. A special word of thanks, though, goes to Henk and Hanneke Hoffland who have, on numerous occasions and weeks at a time not only had to forfeit their dinner-table for the furtherance of this book, but also housed and fed (and entertained) me at the same time. I cannot begin to thank you enough. Colleague and friend, Anelia Dodd, has also spent hours and hours on editing and proof-reading the manuscript. Thank you very, very much. Also thanks to Arda Spijker for assisting with the translation of the samenvatting.

I also need to single out a number of institutions: Firstly I would like to acknowledge the financial support I received for a three month study period from the Nederlands-Zuid Afrikaanse Vereniging, and more specifically the Studiefonds voor Zuid Afrikaanse Studenten (Dr. Veltkamp-Visser). I can now join the illustrious list of countrymen who have been assisted in this manner. Please continue doing this also for others. The University of Amsterdam, Faculty of Law, must be thanked not only for affording me the opportunity to make use of the office, library and it-facilities, but also for providing me with accommodation for a three month stay right at the onset of this research. Maaike Nagel, then assisting in the Paul Scholten Institute, was extremely supportive. I must also extend a special word of thanks to my employer, the University of Limpopo, who have on numerous occasions not only allowed me study-leave to further this endeavour, but also generously contributed towards the cost thereof. To the numerous university functionaries who supported me and made the completion of this book possible, THANK YOU.

Lastly I also want to express my deepest gratitude to my parents who are equally, if not more, relieved than I am that this book is finally written.
