Metrical prodosy: A template-and-constraint approach to phonological phrasing in Italian. Based on the poetry of Giuseppe Ungaretti and Eugenio Montale
Helsloot, C.J.

Citation for published version (APA):

General rights
It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations
If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: http://uba.uva.nl/en/contact, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.
Acknowledgements

Clashes and lapses are not just phenomena of the rhythm of language, they belong to the rhythm of life in all its aspects. The struggle and/or the game is the search for the appropriate resolution of the non-eurhythmic events. During the past six years of my scientific life a flow of clashes, lapses and resolutions passed by. The main clash was against the wall of power built on arrogance and scientific inflexibility; the main lapse, the lack of communication with the one who was supposed to be my supervisor.

But the poetry of Ungaretti and Montale continuously confirmed my choice to do linguistics and to stick to the hypotheses I formulated about the rhythm of language. The tangible resolution came with René Kager, two years ago. His overwhelming and unconditional dedication to phonology saved me from absolute abandonment. I owe this thesis to him.

To Enzo Lo Cascio and Geert Booij I am very grateful too. Geert Booij’s calmness and stability, and Enzo Lo Cascio’s unorthodox vision on linguistics and his ability to put the phonological proposals in a broader linguistic perspective, were of great importance to my mental balance and to the progress of my work.

Many other persons contributed to this thesis. Over the years, a number of Italian native speakers provided me with their ears and intuitions about their language. In particular I would like to thank Laura Bafile, Paolo Boraschi, Claudia Cardone, Annalisa & Rossella Fallacara, Andrea Pratesi and Francesca Spinelli.

Astrid van Wieringen has been of immense help in many ways. Besides allowing me to taste the pleasant atmosphere at the Institute of Phonetic Sciences of the University of Amsterdam, she patiently instructed me how to use the phonetic machinery, and, still more patiently, she listened conscientiously for many hours to the recordings of Montale and Ungaretti without being rewarded with the flavor of their lyricisms.

To numerous (fellow-)researchers I am indebted for comments and discussions on various linguistic issues. Special thanks go to Adriana Andalò, Laura Bafile, Roberto Bolognesi, Marcel den Dikken, Helga Humbert, Silvia Kouwenberg, Nancy Laan, Frank van der Leeuw, Roland Noske, Els den Os, Sharon Peperkamp, Mauro Scorretti, Norval Smith, Mark Verhijde and Jeroen van de Weijer.

As Carlos Gussenhoven delicately put it, Ms. Helsloot is not an Anglicist. Indeed, writing this thesis in Dutch or in Italian would have required less effort, not only from my side but also from the side of Anna Siewierska. I am very grateful for her patience to add the missing determiners and to move the obstinately outplaced adverbials.

I am indebted to Pier Marco Berlincetto, Carlos Gussenhoven, Aafke Hulk, Harry van der Hulst, Mauro Scorretti and Norval Smith, the members of the committee, for critically reading this thesis.
On the more technical side, I would like to recall the indispensable helpfulness of Peter Adrichem and Iskander Serail of the Faculty's Computer Centre, Dick Rozendaal of the Faculty's Printing Office, and Cees Ostendorf and Hotze Mulder of the Faculty's Research Office.

Over the years, the mental and emotional support of many of my dearest friends has been of priceless help to me. Kiki Bröllmann, Dicky & Filip Boeke, Harco Haagsma, Robert Nijhoff, Helen Saelman, Sander Veldhuis, my grandfather Harry and my uncle Joep, and Pieter Wispelweij's music offered me the shelters and shoulders I needed.

To my parents Mechteld and Antonius, and to my sister Lidewij and my brother Mark, I would like to express my feelings of love and gratitude. I hope you have found, or will find your own best way.

Roberto, to you I owe the opening of my heart and my eyes. A life with clashes, lapses and resolutions.