I am deeply indebted to the many people who have helped me in a multitude of ways during the long course of my Ph.D. research. My sincere gratitude goes to you all.

In Karawang district, I am particularly indebted to all of my interlocutors who, with their openness, trust, and patience, were vital to this study as well as personally enriching. My heartfelt condolences go out to some of my interlocutors who passed away during the course of this study. May you rest in peace. Special thanks to Abdulrachman, Inggit Pramudya, Bonan Sanggabuana, Husein Habsyi, Toha Muhaimin, and Enrico, for opening my path to conducting fieldwork.

My immense gratitude goes to Anita Hardon and Saskia Wieringa. I could not have wished for a better team of dedicated promoters. Their encouragement, trust, generosity, and intellectual rigor have helped realize this thesis. They gave me freedom to explore while guarding me from trailing off in too many directions. A special thank you goes to Michael Tan, my co-promoter, who provides valuable comments on some chapters. I always inspired by his writings.

My sincere thanks go to the editors, Zoe Goldstein and Takeo David Hymans, who have contributed their time and expertise to review the manuscript. Without them I would not have been able to maintain the necessary quality expected of the writing.

The Amsterdam School for Social Science Research (ASSR; now the Amsterdam Institute for Social Science Research, AISSR) provided me with an academic home and conducive working environment. I would like to thank the office staff: Anneke Dammers, Teun Bijvoet, Miriam May, Jose Komen, and Hermance Mettrop. My special thanks go to Nicole Schulp who was always there when I needed administrative documents as I moved between two countries. The intellectual input and friendship of my Ph.D. colleagues greatly benefited this study. Thanks to Eileen Moyer, Achilles Ssewaya, Daniel Rejer, Margaret Kwakuya, Linda Pride, and Josien de Klerk. I thank Sylvia Tidey for her help in translating the summary into Dutch in a swift way.
Pursuing this study meant having to take time off from my work. I would like to thank the Department of Anthropology, University of Indonesia, and my colleagues for encouraging me to finish this long overdue project.

Medisch Comite Nederland-Vietnam (MCNV), through the ASSR, provided a grant for this research. The Directorate of Higher Education, Ministry of National Education, Republic of Indonesia, supported the write up phase of this study. I thank both institutions.

My life in Amsterdam would not have been easy without friends who made my stay enjoyable: Alpha Amirrachman, Amalinda Savirani, Johanna Debora Imelda, Deasy Simanjuntak, Ekky Imanjaya, Nuraini Juliastuti, Wenty Minza, Helmy Fuady, Dara Rosmalina Pabittei, Mila Kurniadi, Najib Azca, Athi Sivan, and Imtiaz Shaikh.

My family has sustained me through this long journey. My late father, my mother and my aunt who taught me patience and perseverance in life; my sisters, Irmi and Sasti, who always supported me; my brothers-in-law, Mustadjab and Tasran. Many thanks to you all.

Above all, to Agnes and Marcel, there are no words to express my gratitude for your patience and support through the ups and downs of our life.
