

UvA-DARE (Digital Academic Repository)

Argonauts of West Africa

Migration, citizenship and kinship dynamics in a changing Europe

Andrikopoulos, A.

Link to publication

Citation for published version (APA):

Andrikopoulos, A. (2017). Argonauts of West Africa: Migration, citizenship and kinship dynamics in a changing Europe.

General rights

It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations

If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: <https://uba.uva.nl/en/contact>, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.

ARGONAUTS OF WEST AFRICA

MIGRATION, CITIZENSHIP AND KINSHIP
DYNAMICS IN A CHANGING EUROPE

Apostolos Andrikopoulos

ARGONAUTS OF WEST AFRICA

MIGRATION, CITIZENSHIP AND KINSHIP
DYNAMICS IN A CHANGING EUROPE

Apostolos Andrikopoulos

© Apostolos Andrikopoulos

Cover image: Panopticum Berlin, ■23-144. www.panopticumberlin.com

Design: Waarlé Grafische Vormgeving, Amsterdam, t.waarle@planet.nl

Print: Ipskamp Printing, Enschede

ARGONAUTS OF WEST AFRICA:

MIGRATION, CITIZENSHIP AND KINSHIP
DYNAMICS IN A CHANGING EUROPE

ACADEMISCH PROEFSCHRIFT

ter verkrijging van de graad van doctor

aan de Universiteit van Amsterdam op gezag van de Rector Magnificus

prof. dr. ir. K.I.J. Maex

ten overstaan van een door het College

voor Promoties ingestelde commissie,

in het openbaar te verdedigen in de Agnietenkapel

op dinsdag 19 december 2017, te 14.00 uur

door Apostolos Andrikopoulos

geboren te Kavala, Griekenland

PROMOTIECOMMISSIE

Promotores:

prof. dr. W.G.J. Duyvendak	Universiteit van Amsterdam
prof. dr. P.L. Geschiere	Universiteit van Amsterdam

Copromotores:

dr. S.M.G. Chauvin	Université de Lausanne
prof. dr. T.H. Eriksen	Universitetet i Oslo

Overige leden:

prof. dr. A. Adomako Ampofo	University of Ghana
prof. dr. J. Carsten	University of Edinburgh
prof. dr. H.G. de Haas	Universiteit van Amsterdam
dr. B. Kalir	Universiteit van Amsterdam
dr. R. Spronk	Universiteit van Amsterdam

Faculteit der Maatschappij- en Gedragwetenschappen

Στη μνήμη της γιαγιάς μου Άννας

Table of contents

Acknowledgments	9
Chapter 1.....	13
Introduction: kinship, citizenship and inequality
Chapter 2.....	37
The citizen as a person and the persona of the citizen: Unauthorized identity craft in the age of involuntary immobility
Chapter 3.....	73
“Working with my sister’s papers”: Identity loan, kinship and the perils of intersubjective participation
Chapter 4.....	103
Divorcing siblings? Marriage and Dutch citizenship in transatlantic kinship
Chapter 5.....	133
EU citizenship and the European family: Inequality and subversion in the marriages of African men to women from Europe’s periphery
Conclusion	169
Civic inequality and new dynamics of kinship
Bibliography	181
Summary	205
Samenvatting	211

Acknowledgements

First of all, I want to express my gratitude to all those who participated in this study and shared their life stories with me. The protagonists of this book are migrants from Ghana and Nigeria – the Argonauts of West Africa – as well as other migrants, from other African countries, the Caribbean, Eastern and Southern Europe, with whom West Africans collaborate and develop relations of kinship. Obviously, the title of this dissertation is a playful alteration of Malinowski's (1922) Argonauts of the Western Pacific. But it is also a reference to the story of Argonauts in ancient Greek mythology. Like the Greek Argonauts who embarked on a risky voyage, passing through the Clashing Rocks, in quest of the Golden Fleece in the kingdom of Colchis, the Argonauts of West Africa navigate difficult and constantly changing situations to migrate to Europe and fulfil their aspirations. Both for Greek and West African Argonauts, the role of kinship is central to attaining their goals. Jason, the leader of Argonauts, managed to obtain the Golden Fleece with the help of the King of Colchis's daughter Medea, who became his wife. West African migrants use creatively old and new forms of kinship in their endeavor to travel to and find work and remain in Europe. Nevertheless, in the stories of both Greek and West African Argonauts, kinship takes on a dynamic of its own, which makes it more difficult to control than they had initially believed it would be, and shows its dark, ugly side. Jason succeeded due to Medea's help but when he abandoned her for another woman, Medea took revenge by killing their two children. For West Africans, kinship may have offered solutions to their problems but it has also created new and sometimes more difficult ones. Like tragic heroes in Greek mythology, the adventurous lives of the Argonauts of West Africa gained not only my admiration but my sympathy as well.

I have been tremendously privileged to be supervised by four – indeed, an exceptionally high number – brilliant scholars who are also fantastic individuals. Two anthropologists (Peter Geschiere and Thomas Hylland Eriksen) and two sociologists (Jan Willem Duyvendak and Sébastien Chauvin) made up an ideal supervising team for this ambitious project. I owe an enormous thank you to Peter Geschiere, even though words are too little to express my gratitude for his support, patience and generosity. He has been a leading luminary who has shaped my intellectual thinking to an extent he may not realize. I am not sure how pleasant it was for him to work with me – for sure I have tortured him with my constant delays – but for me it was really fun! Sébastien Chauvin, my “daily supervisor,” has been at times more excited about this project than myself. His enthusiasm has been incredibly motivating and his rigorous comments on every single draft I sent him were invaluable. I appreciate him not only as a scholar but also because he is a wonderful person. I have been really lucky to have cooperated with him. Jan Willem Duyvendak has been the voice of reason in the supervising team. His comments have always been to the point and particularly useful as to how I can make this study relevant to sociological debates. Therefore, his contribution to this project was vital in helping me show how kinship, a classic anthropological topic, can be relevant to other fields in social sciences such as migration and citizenship studies. Like most European anthropologists of my generation, I have been trained in anthropology by the textbooks written by Thomas Hylland Eriksen. When I was excitedly reading his books, as a bachelor's student in Greece, I could have never imagined that one day I would cooperate with him and he would become my supervisor. I had learned so much from his books, then learned so much more from the man. All in all, I could not have wished for a better supervising team. All my supervisors have been special and unique. Thank you from the bottom of my heart for all you did for me. In addition, the supervisors of my previous BA and MA projects have been very important in my intellectual development. Thank you so much to Georgios Agelopoulos, Effie Voutira, Fotini Tsibirdou, Flip Lindo and Ilse van Liempt. Georgios Agelopoulos has been a longtime mentor and I cannot imagine how far I would have gone without him.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Apart from four great supervisors, I had the support of the Amsterdam Institute for Social Science Research (AISSR) and especially of the program group "Political Sociology" (formerly "Dynamics of Citizenship and Culture") which funded this project. They have been generous with me in all possible ways, even when my four-year grant ended. Special thanks to the director of my program group Christian Bröer. Also a big thank you to all university administrative staff who made my life easier and more pleasant: Muriël Kiesel, Danny van der Poel, Joris de Vries, Christina Garofalo, Janus Oomen, Gabby Evers, José Komen, Jeske de Vries, Yomi van der Veen, Karen Kraal, Nicole Schulp, Alix Nieuwenhuis, Joan Schrijvers, Hermance Mettrop, Teun Bijvoet and Stefano Gianì. Also thanks to Joanne Oakes and Roos de Jager-Jongejeugd, who no longer work at the university.

The academic community at the University of Amsterdam was very welcoming and supportive. I wish to thank Rachel Spronk, with whom I will be working on a new project, Amade M'charek, Niko Besnier, Francio Guadeloupe, Mattijs van der Port, Jan Rath, Kristine Krause, Saskia Bonjour, Simona Vezzoli, Katerina Rozakou, Ahmet Akgündüz, Tesseltje de Lange, Jeroen Doomernik and Adnan Hossain. Unfortunately, Gerd Baumann, Sarah van Walsum and Mario Rutten have passed away. I benefited a lot from my engagement with them. They will remain in my memory. Discussions with fellow colleagues and friends have also been stimulating: Robby Davidson, Manolis Pratsinakis, Naomi Van Stapele, Yannis Tzaninis, Sanderien Verstappen, Sanam Roohi, Anneke Beerkens, Paul Mepschen, Markus Balkenhol, Akwasi Osei, Tugba Öztemir, Rogier van Reekum, Carla Rodrigues, TJ Schuitmaker, Eline van Haastrecht, Amisah Bakuri, Yannick Coenders, Marten Boekelo, Frank van As, Jeremy Bierbach, Aarthi Sridhar, Uroš Kovač, Valentina Di Stasio, Robert Pijpers and Mark Hann.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am very grateful to Rogers Brubaker for inviting me to the Department of Sociology at UCLA. During my nine-month stay, I attended courses offered by Roger Waldinger and Min Zhou. I had the opportunity to meet and discuss my work with Andreas Wimmer, Gail Kligman and Jaeeun Kim. I enjoyed the companionship of other graduate students: Leydy Diossa, Juan Delgado, Peter Catron and Matías Fernández. I am also very grateful to Janine Dahinden, who invited me to Maison d'analyse des processus sociaux (MAPS) at the University of Neuchâtel and arranged a magnificent working space, with a view on the lake and the Alps, where I wrote the final pages of this dissertation. My three-month visit was covered by a fellowship by the NCCR-On the move. In Neuchâtel, I had interesting discussions with Joëlle Moret, Yvonne Riaño, Shpresa Jashari, Pathé Barry and Katia Iglesias. Aylin Eriksen helped me have a trouble-free time in Neuchâtel.

At various times and locations, I had the opportunity to discuss my work with scholars from other universities who generously gave me feedback and made critical comments. I wish to thank Janet Carsten, Nicholas de Genova, Aiwha Ong, Katherine Charsley, Richard Jenkins, Susan Ossman, Irene Bloemrad, George Paul Meiu, Sarah Horton, Suzana Narotzky, Erdmute Alber, Tatjana Thelen, Rudolf Gaudio, Gloria Wekker, Blanca Garcés-Masareñas, Melanie Griffiths, Anika Liversage, Jonathan Echeverri Zuluaga, Basile Ndjio, Serena Dankwa, Rijk van Dijk, Edmond Préteceille, Kwame Edwin Otu, Mansah Prah, Dimitris Dalakoglou, Jack Ume Tocco, Tryfon Bampilis, Amber Gemmeke and Helena Wray. Special thanks to Jojada Verrips, who gave me the idea for the title of this book. I want to express my thanks to Jeroen Slot, Harma Beenes and Hans de Waal from the statistics department of the municipality of Amsterdam (Onderzoek, Informatie en Statistiek). They provided access to unpublished data which were particularly useful for this study (see chapters three and five).

I want also to say a big thank you to family and friends in the Netherlands, Greece and Ghana as well as in other parts of the world. The journey was long and their presence in my life made it more beautiful. Joël Illidge, now a fellow anthropologist, has been a solid pillar. There are so many reasons to thank him that it would be unfair to name only a few. I am sure he knows how much I appreciate him. Kim Kuo and Christel Peek have been very caring friends.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

There are also many reasons to be thankful to Joanna Hardeman and Onno Schilstra. The least I can publicly thank them for was that they kindly allowed me to use their drawings (composed under the artistic name “Panopticum Berlin”) for the cover of this book. The book’s design and layout are by the very creative and talented Trees Waarlé. Valia Kalaitzi, Kostas Tikaidis, Alexandra Efraimidou, Vivian Kounio, Amalia Tzaneri, Apostolis Karabairis and Katerina Tsekou have been great friends in Greece. Of course, I could not forget to thank one old and one new friend who will be my paranymphs during my PhD defense: Robby Davidson and Dilys Amoabeng.

Where I am today, to a great extent, I owe to my late grandmother Anna. A hardworking farmer, she did everything she could to support my education. She spent almost her entire scant pension to back my bachelor’s studies in Greece and was so happy to see me progressing. I was the first member of the family to obtain a higher education. But she supported everyone, especially her five grandchildren (all of them males). She was a person who lived for others. That’s why her loss is so painful for us, especially for me. I dedicate this book to her memory.