ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I would like to express my gratitude to a number of people who have contributed to the writing and completion of my dissertation.

I would like to thank Dr Wim Honselaar, my chief supervisor and wonderful colleague, for inspiring me to write a dissertation in the first place, for stimulating my ambitions and for preventing me from giving up when I did not succeed in getting approval for my research project a few years ago. I have come to know him as a great adviser and promotor, always keeping a perfect balance between guiding me and giving me enough freedom.

Thanks are also due to my colleague Dr Rob Schoonen from the Second Language Acquisition Department who, to facilitate the completion of my dissertation, proposed the Faculty board that I be relieved from some of my duties as a teacher of Russian language for a certain period of time.

I would also like to express my gratitude to Dr Adriaan Barentsen and Dr Johannes van der Tak for their willingness to read my manuscript and to give useful comments. I have profited from their great knowledge of Slavic linguistics, their accuracy and their keen eye for details.

I am also indebted to my promotor Prof. Dr W.G. Weststeijn and the members of the dissertation committee, Prof. Dr hab. K. Waszakowa, Prof. Dr J. Schaecken, Prof. Dr J.J. van Baak, Prof. Dr W.R. Veder and Dr J. Kalsbeek for taking the time to read the manuscript and for giving their approval.

Thanks are also due to my colleagues Peter de Groot, Natalja Danshina and Natalja Iancheeva, for their support during the last two years and for taking over my duties as a teacher.

With all my heart I would like to thank my parents who have always believed in me and stimulated my ambitions and who made a right choice by sending me to Moscow State University, the best university of Russia at that time. I would also like to express my gratitude to my dear husband Frank for his inexhaustible patience, mental support and his assistance in computer problems. Without him I would certainly never have completed this dissertation. And finally, I promise my sons Vadim and Dima that from now on I will be a 'good' mother, I will participate in all school and sport activities, bake cookies for Christmas dinner, attend music performances, play cards and read books about the history of Russia. But first I will write a language course to teach them Russian...
