Acknowledgements

A doctoral thesis is not a solitary undertaking. During the course of producing this dissertation, the practical and intellectual assistance of a number of individuals helped me immeasurably.

First, however, I would like to thank an institution — the Amsterdam School for Cultural Analysis — and an individual: Prof. dr. Mieke Bal, its Founding Director and promotor of my thesis. Her apposite comments, as well as her continual encouragement and steadfast support, informed and enlightened my intellectual journey.

Both she and, subsequently, the doctoral committee took the time to read and consider my thesis, for which I will always be grateful. I would also like to single out the Amsterdam School for Cultural Analysis's Managing Director, Dr. Eloe Kingma, who was involved in and committed to the project from the start. I found in ASCA a bold, interdisciplinary institute that welcomes dissertations in an unconventional format.

As my research assistant, Alma Mikulinsky provided valuable input when I first began to set down my thoughts, kindly putting her extensive expertise at my disposal.

Every writer needs an editor, but I was lucky enough to have two. Wayne Gooding and Jocelyn Laurence, partners in Castlebridge Communications, are consummate professionals. I have worked with them for many years, and have always counted on and appreciated their acuity in reading text.

My valued Administrative Assistant for the Ydessa Hendeles Art Foundation, Stuart Mullin, dealt with textual alterations and the imperatives of producing the publication of the thesis with his usual aplomb. He is a mainstay of my professional life.

As are Lisa Kiss and Petra Chevrier of Lisa Kiss Design. Their work made my own work look elegant.

Lucy van de Wiel did an admirable translation of the Abstract. I suspect it was not an easy task.

Finally, I would like to acknowledge the support of the Jacob and Dorothy Hendeles Foundation, which made this doctoral thesis possible.

Ydessa Hendeles
Toronto
October 2009