Advancing GC×GC through integrated sample preparation methods and optimized column formats

Peroni, D.

Citation for published version (APA):

General rights
It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations
If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: https://uba.uva.nl/en/contact, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.
Acknowledgements

The PhD is one of those many things in life that, it does not matter how much effort you put in it, you cannot accomplish by yourself. Luckily I encountered many people in the last years who, in one way or the other, made it possible for me to reach this goal.

My first and most sincere thanks go to Hans-Gerd for being a very helpful supervisor. Thank you for being always present when I needed it, for your support and for teaching me so much while making me independent. The path towards this thesis was not always easy, but I feel that I have improved a lot since the beginning thanks to your help and constant spur. Working with you was always nice, often very stimulating and for sure never boring. Also for this, thank you. Equally important, thanks for introducing me to the best beer in the world: Bavaria, of course!

To Wil my thanks for giving me the chance - and to convince me, actually - to do this PhD. I came to A’dam for only six months but thanks to your persuasian I ended up being here for much longer. It’s a choice I would make again, so thanks for believing in me and fighting my stubbornness. Without NLISIS and your support this thesis would not exist.

I also want to thank my co-promotor Peter for accepting me in you group for nearly 6 years. During this time you always made me feel more than welcome. I never found your door closed and you always had a nice word for me. For all this, a heartfelt thank you. I will miss your kindness and your funny jokes (even those I heard more than once!).

I must express my deepest appreciation to JSB and Zoex in the person of Marco Koenen for providing support in terms of equipment. My gratitude goes also to DSM Resolve in the person of Ynze Mengerink for giving me the chance to use of their equipment and lab space as well as for the support when I worked at the DSM site in Geleen. I am also grateful Sjaak de Koning for the technical help and LECO for allowing him to spend some time providing me with his support.
As I was in this group already for a while before starting my PhD, I saw many people leaving and arriving. In a way, I feel that I lived two groups. A big “Thank you” goes to the “old people” (Aleksandra, Rob, Peter P., Ewin, Sonja, Stella, Elena, Dominique, Abdul, Rashid, Filippo, Fran, Shane, Eva) for making me feel welcome when I arrived and for the many good memories, from the daily chats to the fun during the conferences. Also thanks for introducing me to the Dutch borrel back in the day when the Group’s Friday drinks were hard-core (and sometimes nearly deadly) events. Thanks also to the “young people” (Rudy, Henrik, Hanneke, Andjoe, Maria, Jana, Martin, Katja, Ngoc A, Sandra, Michelle, Ana, Andrei, Alina,) for being a part of my more recent period at UvA. I wish you all the best luck with your work and a lot of fun while doing it!

A special mention for Dominique, Fran, Rudy and Andjoe is mandatory. Thank you for your collaboration! Your help and hard work was essential and really appreciated.

My most sincere gratitude goes to those faces that never changed and created a sense of continuity through these six years. Petra, Peter V., Tom, Wim, Sjoerd: thank you for the nice atmosphere and for your support – whether it was a technical help in the lab, a useful talk about some projects or a chat and a laugh in front of the coffee machine.

Work was only a part of my experience in A’dam. I always tried to create a life which would make me happy not only workwise but, more importantly, as a person. Luckily I met many people that made this experience full of friendship and fun. If I enjoyed being here, it is thanks to them. You know who you are. Thank you all for the support and the good times!

My deepest gratitude goes to my family for spoiling me each time I went back home, for always making me leave with a suitcase packed with the best Italian food and for the constant support, especially in the darkest moments. Grazie di cuore!