

UvA-DARE (Digital Academic Repository)

Transformations of television systems: Implications for media content, political parties and political attitudes

Arbaoui, B.

Publication date
2014

Link to publication

Citation for published version (APA):

Arbaoui, B. (2014). Transformations of television systems: Implications for media content, political parties and political attitudes.

General rights

It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations

If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: <https://uba.uva.nl/en/contact>, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.

Foreword

Writing this thesis was accomplished with the company and support of a lot of people. I would like to thank all of them and acknowledge how everyone has helped me in her own way during the process of writing this book.

When I came to Amsterdam in the summer of 2000, the University of Amsterdam was a welcoming place to me. At the time, I did not know that it would become my home for more than 10 years. I would hereby like to thank my professors and lecturers in sociology (especially in the first and second year) who, through their teaching and enthusiasm, made me fall in love with social science.

Professor Wouter van der Brug and Dr. Philip van Praag: I cannot thank you enough for your critical supervision, support and encouragement. Without your support it would not have been possible to reach this stage. Thank you.

I would like to thank Lena van der Leije who assisted me with the data gathering for this project. I would also like to express my gratitude to Dr. Richard van der Wurff who, in the early stage of this project, provided me with information about data sources and was kind to spend some of his time discussing theoretical matters.

My roommates! I am really glad that I met you. I was lucky to share my first room in the Bushuis with Eline and TJ. You were both very understanding and we shared a lot of friendly and supporting moments. I will always remember our warm conversations. Thank you for your friendship. In the second room in the Binnengasthuis I was lucky to meet Jesse and Basje. Jesse, your enthusiasm and intrinsic motivation are really heart-warming. Basje, your cheerfulness was the sunshine in our room. I am glad and thankful for your friendship and I am very proud to have you as my 'paranimfen'.

I would also like to thank various colleagues with whom conversing in the corridors or during the lunch break was a continuous source of joy. I would particularly like to thank Jill for sharing my passion for (a lot of) food with me. Annemarie, thank you for your kind visits and invitations. Benno, Lutz and Matthijs, it was always nice to pop in to your room and share our interests in research and/or our similar worries and irritations.

Last but not least, I would like to thank Ana for all the positive energy and friendship, Amber for the inspiration and friendship and Bas for his generous friendship. Younous and Hanane, thank you for your welcoming home and for bringing 'tamazight' and 'tamazirt' back to my house.

Hein, Selma and Dalila, I do not know if I should thank you or say sorry that I was not always there for you. I only can say I love you. Hein: It goes without saying that without you, accomplishing this thesis would not have been possible. Thank you for bearing with me during difficult times during the writing of this thesis. I am sure we will share more joy and there will be more books to write in the years to come.

Oxford, December 2013