

UvA-DARE (Digital Academic Repository)

IE-Ireland: Public broadcaster pays damages over unverified tweet during election debate

Ó Fathaigh, R.

Publication date

2018

Document Version

Final published version

Published in

IRIS

Link to publication

Citation for published version (APA):

Ó Fathaigh, R. (2018). IE-Ireland: Public broadcaster pays damages over unverified tweet during election debate. IRIS, 2018(2), 18-19. Article 22.
<http://merlin.obs.coe.int/iris/2018/2/article22.en.html>

General rights

It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations

If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: <https://uba.uva.nl/en/contact>, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.

IRIS 2018-2/22

IE-Ireland: Public broadcaster pays damages over unverified tweet during election debate

On 19 December 2017, the public broadcaster RTÉ settled the ongoing legal proceedings that had been initiated by a former presidential candidate against RTÉ over a 2011 televised election debate. The claim centred on RTÉ's 2011 election debate, when the presenter questioned the candidate about a statement concerning him that had just been made on the supposed official Twitter account of another candidate. It later turned out that the tweet had been attributed, in error, to the official Twitter account of the other candidate. In March 2012, the Broadcasting Authority of Ireland (BAI) held that the programme had been in breach of section 39(1)(b) of the Broadcasting Act 2009, being "unfair" to the candidate (see IRIS 2012-5/27). However, the BAI decided that the complaint was not of such a serious nature as to warrant an investigation or public hearing.

The candidate, who was not elected, initiated legal proceedings against RTÉ in January 2013, claiming that RTÉ had acted negligently in putting the question to him over the tweet, and had sought to undermine his credibility. The candidate also claimed that RTÉ had directed the debate with the improper aim of altering the course of the election, that RTÉ had promoted the electoral chances of another candidate, and that RTÉ's conduct was targeted malice intended to damage him. Mr Gallagher also claims damages, including aggravated or exemplary damages, or both, against RTÉ for negligence and breach of duty (including breach of statutory duty). In April 2017, the High Court dismissed RTÉ's application to have the claim struck out (see IRIS 2017-6/21).

In the High Court on 19 December 2017, RTÉ issued an apology to the candidate, and informed the Court that the proceedings could be ended. In its statement to the Court, RTÉ acknowledged that it had failed to comply with its statutory duty under section 39 of the Broadcasting Act in the course of the Presidential Election Debate programme which was broadcast on 24 October 2011. The broadcaster acknowledged that it should have verified the origin of a tweet to which reference was made during that broadcast and that the tweet should not have been erroneously attributed to another candidate's Twitter account.

Further, RTÉ stated that it had failed in its obligation of fairness to the candidate under the Broadcasting Act, and in particular (i) in the broadcast of the tweet without verification; (ii) in the failure to provide clarification on the provenance of the tweet within the same programme and (iii) in the failure likewise to provide clarification of the provenance of the tweet in a subsequent radio broadcast on 25 October 2011. Finally, RTÉ paid "substantial damages" in settlement of the legal action, although the exact terms of the settlement were confidential.

Ireland is due to hold a presidential election in October 2018.

- RTÉ, "RTÉ apologises and pays Gallagher settlement over tweet," 19 December 2017
<http://merlin.obs.coe.int/redirect.php?id=18909>

EN

Ronan Ó Fathaigh

Institute for Information Law (IViR), University of Amsterdam

The objective of IRIS is to publish information on legal and law-related policy developments that are relevant to the European audiovisual sector. Despite our efforts to ensure the accuracy of the content, the ultimate responsibility for the truthfulness of the facts on which we report is with the authors of the articles. Any opinions expressed in the articles are personal and should in no way be interpreted as representing the views of any organisations represented in its editorial board.

© European Audiovisual Observatory, Strasbourg (France)