FOREWORD .......................................................................................................................... 14

GENERAL INTRODUCTION ................................................................................................. 19

1.1 EARLIER RESEARCH ON PREPARATORY LAYERS FOR OIL PAINTING ............................................................. 20
1.1.1 Research into historic documents ................................................................................. 20
1.1.2 The evolution of source research: developments in source research methodology .................................................. 24
1.1.3 Reconstructions for the investigation of preparatory layers ................................................. 26
1.1.4 The start of scientific investigations of preparatory layers ............................................... 28
1.1.5 From the 1970s onwards: more combinations of recipe research and instrumental analysis 29
1.1.6 The achievements and limitations of previous research ................................................... 33
1.2 THE CENTRAL AIMS OF THIS THESIS ........................................................................... 35
1.3 RESEARCH METHODOLOGY ......................................................................................... 37
1.4 STRUCTURE OF THE DISSERTATION ............................................................................ 40

PART I: DESCRIPTION OF THE RECIPE DATASET AND ANALYSIS OF THE RECIPES ...................................................... 43

CHAPTER 2 THE RECIPE COLLECTION, THE AUTHORS AND THE IMPACT OF THE RECIPES ......................................................... 45

2.1 THE ESTABLISHMENT OF THE RECIPE COLLECTION ......................................................................................... 45
2.2 SIZE AND SCOPE OF THE RECIPE COLLECTION ......................................................................................... 46
2.3 THE CHARACTER OF THE SOURCES ..................................................................................... 53
2.4 THE AUDIENCES OF RECIPE BOOKS ................................................................................. 59
2.5 THOUGHTS ON TEXTUAL ANALYSIS ................................................................................ 63
2.6 COPIES, REPETITIONS, TRANSLATIONS AND LATER EDITIONS ......................................................... 64
2.7 CONCLUDING REMARKS ............................................................................................... 65

CHAPTER 3 PREPARATORY LAYERS FOR OIL PAINTING; THEIR TERMINOLOGY AND FUNCTION .............................................. 67

3.1 THE PREPARATORY SYSTEM .......................................................................................... 67
3.1.1 The purpose of the preparatory system ......................................................................... 71
3.1.2 The size layer .............................................................................................................. 72
3.1.3 The ground layers; fillers and pigments ...................................................................... 72
3.1.4 Isolation layers ........................................................................................................... 73
3.1.5 The ‘Imprimatura’, the ‘primuerel’, the ‘imprimeure’ and the ‘priming’ ............................ 74
3.2 APPLICATIONS TO THE REVERSE OF THE SUPPORT ........................................................................ 75
CHAPTER 7 APPLICATION AND TEXTURE ......................................................... 179

7.1 SIZE APPLICATION METHODS .......................................................... 179
  7.1.1 Animal glue .................................................................................. 179
  7.1.2 Flour paste or starch paste ............................................................. 182
  7.1.3 Oil or varnish size application methods .......................................... 182
  7.1.4 Application tools ........................................................................ 182
  7.1.5 Smoothing ................................................................................... 184

7.2 GROUND LAYER CONSISTENCY AND APPLICATION METHODS .......... 185
  7.2.1 The ground material: consistency of the ground mixture, the degree of pigment and filler dispersion ............................................................. 185
  7.2.2 Panel grounds ............................................................................. 187
  7.2.3 Canvas grounds ........................................................................... 189
  7.2.4 Ground application for copper, stone, paper and board ................... 192

7.3 LAYER THICKNESS AND TEXTURE IN RELATION TO THE PAINTING SUPPORT .......................................................... 193
  7.3.1 General comments about layer thickness........................................ 193
  7.3.2 Wooden panels ........................................................................... 194
  7.3.3 Canvas ......................................................................................... 196

7.4 PREPARING THE PRIMED SUPPORT FOR PAINTING .................................. 200
7.5 CONCLUDING REMARKS ...................................................................... 202

CHAPTER 8 THE COLOUR OF PREPARATORY LAYERS ........................................ 203

8.1 GENERAL TRENDS IN GROUND COLOUR, 1550-1900 ................................ 203
8.2 PAINT DEPOSITS IN GROUND PIGMENTATION ...................................... 208
8.3 GROUND COLOUR AND SUBJECT ......................................................... 210
8.4 THE TRANSITION TO LIGHTER GROUND COLOURS IN THE LATE EIGHTEENTH CENTURY ................................................................. 213
8.5 GROUND COLOURS IN NINETEENTH CENTURY RECIPE BOOKS ............... 214
8.6 CONCLUDING REMARKS ...................................................................... 216

CHAPTER 9 PROFESSIONAL PRIMERS .............................................................. 219

9.1 DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE FOR THE EXISTENCE OF PROFESSIONAL PRIMERS ................................................................. 219
9.2 EVIDENCE FOR THE EXISTENCE OF PROFESSIONAL PRIMERS IN HISTORICAL RECIPE BOOKS ......................................................... 221
9.3 ARTIST-PRIMED CANVAS ..................................................................... 221
9.4 THE QUALITY OF COMMERCIAL PRIMED CANVAS .............................. 224
9.5 ARTISTS’ MODIFICATIONS OF COMMERCIAL PRIMED CANVAS ........... 227
9.6 INFORMATION ON PREPARATORY LAYERS IN THE WINSOR & NEWTON ARCHIVE ................................................................. 228
9.7 CONCLUDING REMARKS ...................................................................... 232

CHAPTER 10 THE AGEING OF PREPARATORY LAYERS ...................................... 235

10.1 THE INFLUENCE OF THE SIZE LAYER .................................................... 235
10.2 THE INFLUENCE OF GROUND INGREDIENTS ........................................ 236
  10.2.1 Seventeenth century advice against the use of specific pigments ......... 236
  10.2.2 Problems related to the use of siccatives ........................................ 236

CHAPTER 16  GENERAL CONCLUSIONS .................................................. 349

16.1  THE APPROACH: RECIPE ANALYSIS, RECONSTRUCTIONS, COMPARISON WITH PAINTINGS ............................................. 349
16.2.1 Recipes for preparatory layers: from a fragmented image to continuity ................................................................. 350
16.2.2 Reconstructions for the interpretation of recipes and for comparisons with actual paintings ........................................... 350

16.2  AUTHORS’ INTENTIONS AND ARTISTS’ MOTIVES .......................................................... 353
16.2.1 The character of the source and its influence on the type of advice provided ................................................................. 353
16.2.2 Recipes as a source of information about artists’ intentions and fears ................................................................. 354

16.3  RECOMMENDATIONS FOR FURTHER RESEARCH .................................................. 356
16.3.1 A final word ................................................................................................................................. 358

ABSTRACT .................................................................................................................. 363

LIST OF TABLES AND FIGURES IN THE MAIN TEXT ........................................ 368

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF SECONDARY LITERATURE ........................................... 374

An annotated bibliography of historical sources is found in Volume 2, Appendix 2.
