ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This study was made possible by the support of the Netherlands Organisation for Scientific Research (NWO) (VIDI research programme ‘International Criminal Procedure: In Search of General Rules and Principles’), for which I am grateful. Furthermore, I am much indebted to my promotor, Göran Sluiter for providing me the opportunity to write this dissertation and for his support in writing and completing this research. The many opportunities I received from him I will not forget. Likewise, I am grateful for the support I received from my co-promotor, the late Bert Swart. Although his illness prevented him from participating until the completion of this dissertation, I feel privileged for the valuable ideas he offered me. He often provided me with new perspectives on my thesis. Furthermore, I am grateful to the members of the doctorate committee, dr. Serge Brammertz, dr. Megan Fairlie, Prof. dr. van Kempen, Prof. dr. Donders, Prof. dr. Mettraux and dr. Abels. I should also sincerely thank the many judges, staff members and defence counsel of the different tribunals I visited and who agreed to be interviewed for the purpose of this study. On many points, their insights into the law of international criminal procedure were indispensable for the completion of this study. Additionally, I greatly benefited from the expertise from the participants of the IEF research project. Further, I express my gratitude to my wonderful colleagues of the University of Amsterdam and the Amsterdam Center for International Law for creating a welcoming and stimulating working environment. Harmen, Tom, Sergey, Denis, Annemieke, Cassandra, Toni, Maïke, Koen, Gaetano, Sander, Sara, Arjen, Menno and Frederiek, many thanks to all of you. Koen and Krit, a special thank you for agreeing to be my paranimfen and for your kind assistance with the preparations for the ‘big day’. I also wish to thank my present colleagues from the Leuven Institute for Human Rights and Critical Studies (‘LIHRICS’) for their cheers. I pay tribute to my parents and family for their encouragements. Finally, Ibele, thank you for your lasting love and support. To you and to Pauline, I dedicate this book.
