Acknowledgements

What a wonderful, extraordinary four years it has been. First and foremost, I would like to acknowledge the work of my three supervisors, Mieke Bal, José van Dijck and Esther Peeren in supporting this research with their valuable insights and ever-speedy feedback. Mieke Bal, thank you for taking me on as one of your last PhD candidates and offering such careful, detailed readings of the individual chapters and final manuscript. José van Dijck, thank you for your enthusiasm, encouragement and inspiring reflections on my work. I always left our meetings feeling more motivated and energised. Esther Peeren, thank you for always being available for questions and offering your lightning-speed, and ever precise and insightful feedback on every chapter rewrite. I am deeply grateful for the generosity with which you prioritised me even during your holidays. It was an honour to work with all three of you.

I would also like to acknowledge the Amsterdam School for Cultural Analysis (ASCA) for making this research possible through its generous financial support, professional working environment and inspiring research community. I praise ASCA for recognising the importance of creating comprehensive funded PhD positions that allow doctoral candidates to focus on their research; I am grateful for the privileges I have been offered and hope that future PhD candidates will benefit from the same opportunities. Eloë Kingma and Jantine van Gogh run ASCA with such joy and dedication. Thank you both for making me feel at home from day one. I would also like to express my gratitude to the University of Amsterdam, which has provided an equally stimulating and reliable institutional context for my work. Throughout my studies and PhD research, and particularly during the final year of my appointment, the UvA has offered numerous opportunities to develop my research projects, but also to actively and collectively reflect on the conditions of knowledge production within contemporary academia, for which I am very grateful.

Throughout the four years, the ASCA Theory Seminar, led by Mireille Rosello and Sudeep Dasgupta, has been a consistent occasion for engaging with cultural theory in energising discussions. Thank you both for your stimulating ideas, your openness and warmth. I had the pleasure of teaching at the Literary Studies department and I am grateful to my students, co-teacher Veronika Zangl and student assistant Tessa de Keijser for everything they have taught me. The Mellon Teaching Seminar on “Reproductive Control, Controlling Reproduction” ran by Sarah Franklin and Martin Johnson at the University of Cambridge has been very helpful in gaining insight into the interdisciplinary study of reproductive technologies. Thank you for organising and welcoming me at these meetings and the many inspiring academic events that followed, including the Cambridge Interdisciplinary Reproduction Forum and IVF Histories and Culture Project. I would like to express my gratitude to the members of my PhD committee for their work in preparing for and attending the defence. I would also like to thank Marieke Schellart, Sjoerd Repping and Sebastiaan Mastenbroek for sharing their professional reflections on various reproductive technologies and Roger Gosden for kindly offering feedback on parts of the text. I express my appreciation to Sophie Jones, Harriet Cooper, Fran Bigman, Merete Lie, Nina Lykke, Mary C. Rawlinson and Nollaig Frost for their cooperation in publishing my research.

At the beautiful, sunny ASCA offices at the PC Hoofthuis there were always kind colleagues present to share stories and drinks with, many of whom have become my close friends. It was a pleasure to be part of such a vibrant and interdisciplinary PhD community and get to know my generous, fun and smart colleagues Blandine Joret, Alexandre Poulin, Selçuk Balamir, Simon Ferdinand, Annelies Kleinherenbrink, Lara Mazurski, Thijs Witty, Tim Yaczo, Erin La Cour, Peyman Amiri, Uzma Ansari, Tina Bastajian, Marie Beauchamps, Birkan Tas, Adam Chambers, Pedram Dibazar, Enis Dinç, Moosje Moti Goosen, Penn Ip, Noam Knoller, Melle Kromhout, Aylin Kuryel, Flora Lysen, Niall Martin, Miriam Meißner, Judith Naeff, Marjan Nijborg, Nur Ozgenalp, Jeffrey Pijpers, Irina Souch, Eliza Steinbock, Mikki Stelder, Margaret Tali, Irene Villaescusa, Vesna Vravnik and becoming friends with some of their loved ones: Suzanne Vonk, Stephen Clark, Radek Grabowski, Sander de Wit, Malcolm Kratz and Cem Yalcinkaya.

My friends have offered me comfort, inspiration and pleasure throughout this endeavour, for which I am grateful. Mark Robinson and Take Lijftogt are as close as kin, ever kind and welcoming. Rachel O'Reilly, thank you for your many visits and late-night discussions, especially those joined by Ellen Venus Feiss. Thank you, Jennifer Mathews, for showing me your kindness, hydration and the vast expanse of the world's edge. I warmly appreciate the company, distractions, life lessons and advice from Barbara Knapper, Wanda and Emma Klein, Eva Reijman, Margaret Kruszewska, Marguerite Rigoglioso, Liesbeth Beneder, Margreet Vermeulen, Elmar Janssen, Esther Beek, Monica Germino, Isis Maakestad, Filippa Barfvestam, Sigrid Merx, Carmen Ket, Emily Huurdeman, Rebecca Marshall, Jane Levi, Esther Ending, Ray Malone, Ruth Kief, Boukje Cnossen, Lisa Clayton, Elsa Richardson, Tashina Blom and Harriet Bergman. I would like to celebrate the people who have taught me about birthing: Soraya Soebhag, Merlijn Kamps, Bea van der Put, Jennifer Walker, Jacky Bloemraad-de Boer, Ina May Gaskin, Michel Odent, Liliana Lammers, Anija Hutten and Carolyn Cowan. I cherish the memory of Fenne Bordat, Sandy Hayes and Layne Redmond.

I thank my dear parents for making, raising and cherishing me. Thank you for providing the egg and sperm, the blood and milk from which I grew. Thank you, Astrid, for carrying and birthing me so many years ago. Thank you also for teaching me how to learn, for celebrating each step with genuine joy, for passing on your strength and determination, for giving me books and self-confidence, for always forgiving me, and loving me more. Thomas, thank you for reading your dermatology books with me when I was 3 years old, for saving the medical records of when I was 3 cm long, for making it your life's work to tenderly show me the world, for encouraging my curiosity, for taking me for a walk when there is too much work. Thank you both for your smiles, for your kindness. I am increasingly aware of the magnitude of the gift of your unwavering, continuous love.

I give thanks to my grandparents, especially my grandmothers, whom I have had the honour of knowing, and my extended family of aunts, uncles, cousins, nephews and nieces across the world who have always received me with a smile and open arms.

Then there are those who become kin not by blood, or by choice, but by the heart's compass. Caroline, otherworldly sister of shining spirit, I thank you. For love, for music, for laughter, a thousand times over. Lesley, thank you for whirling into my life, luminous and liquid, from the hot and humid land of swaying trees and icy, breath-taking waters. One cannot bear to spend a Season in Paradise without crying out in instant nostalgia, yet here we are and here we live. Thank you both for being my guardians on this journey.
