Many people have been involved in my research. I cannot name all of them, but some deserve to be mentioned.

Professor Tom Blom and Professor Göran Sluiter, my two supervisors, have advised me from the conception of my research topic up to the final draft of my manuscript. They have provided me with critical remarks and with encouragement to proceed in new directions. Without their guidance and feedback, this work would not have been possible. I am truly grateful for their support. Likewise, I am thankful to the members of the doctoral committee for their willingness to evaluate this thesis.

My colleagues at the Criminal Law department of the University of Amsterdam have been a joy to work with. Whether we are still sharing the same corridor or you have left to pursue a career elsewhere, I have fond memories of our years at the Oude-manhuispoort. I would especially like to thank Menno, who has offered a critical ear during my first years at the UvA, as well as Denis, whose door has always been open to me all these years.

Outside the realm of criminal lawyers, other scholars and scientists have helped me develop as a researcher as well. The fellows of the Amsterdam Centre for International Law have accepted me as a member of their research community. My co-teachers at the master’s program in Forensic Science are helping me to explore a growing potential for interdisciplinary research in criminal procedure and expert evidence.
Numerous friends have given me their companionship in the process. I thank all of you. Jantien and Marieke, our friendship has been lasting for 20 years now and is still very dear to me. Eva en Maartje, my paranimfen, you have provided me with more than practical support for the defence.

Finally, I owe heartfelt thanks to my family. Ik wul julle allegaar verlegen veul dank zegge. My parents, Kees and Greet, and my partner, Tim, have supported me unconditionally. I dedicate this book to you.
