Pan-Africanism

A legacy of slavery
Delea, H.J.P.

Publication date
2019

Document Version
Other version

License
Other

Citation for published version (APA):

General rights
It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations
If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: https://uba.uva.nl/en/contact, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.
Pan-Africanism has been studied as an ideology, an epistemology, a theory; and also, as a social movement. However, it has insufficiently been studied as an institutionalized phenomenon and as a producer of knowledge. Most work has been conducted on the emergence of Pan-Africanism in the African diaspora in the mid-to-late 19th century. Yet, far less has been written about Pan-Africanism as an epistemology, that is as a set of ideas and ideologies.

In this dissertation, it is argued that Pan-Africanism is part of an Africana intellectual tradition. Both Pan-Africanism, as a series of epistemologies – and the Africana intellectual tradition - emerged directly from history and experience. It is therefore argued that epistemic Pan-African knowledge production uses history and experience as its reference. That is, it does not construct its intellectualisms from reading the enlightenment writers, such as is commonly practiced within the European intellectual tradition.

Throughout its history, Pan-Africanism saw numerous unreasonable responses from predominantly (former) colonizing powers to reasonable, arguments voiced in Pan-African congress petitions and speeches. This happened against the background of a changing world order. Whereas Pan-Africanism started in a situation dominated by the necessity to engage, it moved to a situation in which it increasingly was able to confront (former) colonial and imperial powers. As the circumstances of world politics changed, so did the epicenter of Pan Africanism, and in this dissertation, the author highlights how Pan-Africanism moved its epicenter from the Diaspora to Africa, where it was transformed and institutionalized.
Pan-Africanism

A Legacy of Slavery
PAN-AFRICANISM: A LEGACY OF SLAVERY

ACADEMISCH PROEFSCHRIFT

ter verkrijging van de graad van doctor

aan de Universiteit van Amsterdam op gezag van de Rector Magnificus

prof. dr. ir. K.I.J. Maex

ten overstaan van een door het College voor Promoties ingestelde commissie, in het openbaar te verdedigen in de Aula der Universiteit op vrijdag 11 januari 2019, te 13.00 uur

door Homme Jan Peter Delea

geboren te ’t Zandt
Promotiecommissie

Promotor: Prof. dr. S.A. Small Universiteit van Amsterdam

Copromotor: Dr. K. Nimako Universiteit van Amsterdam

Overige leden: Prof. dr. H. Adi University of Chichester
Prof. dr. J.M. Baud Universiteit van Amsterdam
Dr. N.A. Blyden The George Washington University
Prof. dr. M.M. van der Linden Universiteit van Amsterdam
Prof. dr. A.A. M’charek Universiteit van Amsterdam

Faculteit der Geesteswetenschappen
CONTENTS

Acknowledgments i
Preface iii

1. Introduction
1.1 Context: Slavery, Abolition and Pan-Africanism 1
1.2 Theoretical Framework 8
1.3 Methodology
   - Sources of Data 15
   - Methods 15
   - Framework 15
1.4 Overview of chapters 17

2. World Historical Context, 1850-1899 21
2.1 The World in the Period of Abolition 21
2.2 Pioneers: People, Ideas and Voices 22
2.3 Lead up to the 1900 Pan-African Conference 44

3. Pan-Africanism as Social Movement, 1900-1945 47
   - Rise of the Pan-African Movement 47
   - Pan-Africanism as a Social Movement 49
   3.1 Overview of the Conferences 52
   3.2 Personnel Changes – from the Diaspora to Africa 65
   3.3 Opposition from the West 68
   - Media and Governmental Responses to the Pan-African Congresses 69
   3.4 The turning point – 1945 75
   3.5 Achievements from conferences overall 78
   3.6 Legacy of the Conferences 79
       - 1945 Concluding Remarks 79
       - Epistemologies 83

4. Decolonization and the Logic of Pan-Africanism, 1945-1957 85
4.1 The World Historical Context Revisited 85
4.2 Colonial Crisis and the Emergence of the United Nations 86
4.3 Nkrumah and Ideas: From Petitions to Political Mobilization 91
4.4 Nkrumah and Strategy: From Self Government Now to Positive Action 96
4.5 Nkrumah and Tactics: Moving Towards Independence 100

5.1 The Architects: Redefining Africa 110
   - 5.1.1 Conference of Independent African States, 1958 110
Conference of Independent African States Declaration 124
Legacy 128
5.1.2 The First All-African Peoples’ Conference, 1958: State and Social Movement 130
Petition and legacy 137
5.1.3 The Second and Third All-African Peoples’ Conferences, 1960-1961 139
Petition and legacy 142
Epistemologies 144
5.2 The Architecture 146
5.2.1 The Establishment of the Organization of African Unity, 1963 146
Charter of the Organization for African Unity 149
Legacy 161
Epistemologies 163
6. The Decline and Revival of Pan-Africanism: From OAU to AU, 1964-2002 165
6.1 Economic and Political Crisis in Africa 168
Pan-Africanism in decline 169
The OAU in practice 171
6.2 The Sixth Pan-African Congresses, 1974 174
Petition and legacy 186
6.3 The Seventh Pan-African Congress, 1994 190
Petition and legacy 196
6.4 Pan-Africanism 100 years later 202
6.4.1 The World Conference Against Racism, 2001 203
Petition and legacy 217
6.4.2 The Establishment of the African Union, 2002 225
Epistemologies 226
7. Conclusion: African Sovereignty and the Sovereignty of All Africans 227
Bibliography 236
Summary 253
Samenvatting 255
About the author 257