ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS/DANKWOORD

I would like to express my sincere gratitude for all persons who directly or indirectly helped me in my research and thesis.

My promoter, Prof. Dr. J. Goudsmit for allowing me to begin my study in the Department of Human Retrovirology. His encouragement, guidance, scientific criticism and made this thesis possible.

My co-promoters;
Georgios Pollakis, for his scientific advice, kindness, for help and advice during thesis writing, and unlimited support in all situations.
Tobias Rinke de Wit for all the help over the years.
Yohaness Mengistu for encouragement and interest in my work.

I also wish to express my sincere gratitude to Arnaud Fontanet, and Prof. Dr. Roel Coutinho for constructive scientific criticism as a co-author and collaborator.
Marion Cornelissen and Vladimir V. Lukashov for their interest in the work and help when I was in need of it.
My collaborators and co-authors for their contribution, which made this thesis possible.
Staff members of EHNRI/ENARP and Department of Human Retrovirology, for their direct or indirect assistance.
My lunch group in the Department of Human Retrovirology at AMC for having nice time and being good friends.
Wim van Est for his patient in doing and re-doing figures and photos whenever asked.
Tesfaye Mebratu for his endless assistance and Mintwabe Hussien for warm friendship in good and as well as in times of trouble.

To my Ethiopian friends in Amsterdam for their encouragement and for all the good times.
My Ethiopian friends in Addis Ababa and abroad for their support, interest in my work, and for being so good friends.
My friends “The Mentekos” in Addis and abroad, for the good times spent together with “less expense and maximum enjoyment motto”, where everybody invest a lot and get back uncountable happiness.

Finally I would like to thank the Ethiopian Health and Nutrition Research Institute (EHNRI) for giving me this opportunity in collaboration with Ethio-Netherlands AIDS Research project (ENARP).

Last not least, my deepest gratitude goes to my families for their endless support and love.
