Switching during commercial breaks
van Meurs, A

Citation for published version (APA):
van Meurs, A. (1999). Switching during commercial breaks

General rights
It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations
If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: http://uba.uva.nl/en/contact, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.
Contents

Acknowledgements .................................................. 7
Contents .......................................................... 9
List of tables and figures ....................................... 10

1 Research question ............................................... 13
1.1 Research objectives ......................................... 13
1.2 Theoretical framework ....................................... 17
1.3 Research strategy ............................................. 26

2 Defining “switching behaviour” ............................... 29
2.1 Terminology .................................................... 30
2.2 Recall surveys .................................................. 31
2.3 Observational research ....................................... 35
2.4 People meter research ....................................... 36
2.5 Other types of switching research ......................... 46
2.6 Choosing a definition of switching ....................... 48

3 Explanatory variables: hypotheses ......................... 51
3.1 Placement of the break ..................................... 52
3.2 Channel programming ....................................... 55
3.3 Programming on the other channels ...................... 61
3.4 The audience ................................................. 63
3.5 Content of the break ....................................... 74
3.6 Summary ....................................................... 83

4 Data .............................................................. 87
4.1 People meter data ............................................ 87
4.2 Unit of analysis .............................................. 88
4.3 Commercial breaks ......................................... 89
4.4 Respondents .................................................. 90
4.5 Validity ....................................................... 91
4.6 Reliability .................................................... 92
5 Results: switching behaviour assessed
5.1 Decrease in ratings 95
5.2 Increase in ratings 97
5.3 The net effect of switching on the break ratings 98
5.4 Interpretation 101

6 Testing the model 103
6.1 Overview of the models 103
6.2 Factors causing a decrease in ratings 107
6.3 Factors causing an increase in ratings 113
6.4 Testing of the hypotheses 117

7 Conclusions and recommendations 127
7.1 Implications for communication science 127
7.2 Practical applications 131
7.3 Suggestions for further research 137

Summary 141

Appendix 1: Overview of switching studies 145
Appendix 2: Yearly averages broadcast and viewing time 153
Appendix 3: Operationalisation of switching behaviour 155
Appendix 4: Explanatory variables 159
Appendix 5: Operationalisation of explanatory variables 167
Appendix 6: Statistical methodology 183
Appendix 7: Descriptives and correlations 189
Appendix 8: Multicollinearity 197
Appendix 9: Testing of the hypotheses 201
Appendix 10: Possible indirect effects of product and campaign characteristics 213
Appendix 11: Average level of the effects on switching 223

References 225
Subject index 233
Author index 239
Samenvatting 243