Time flies, and my five-year PhD journey is now coming to an end. Looking back, what began with uncertainty and exploration gradually evolved into a clear research direction and deeper scientific understanding. I am fully aware that this journey has not been accomplished by my efforts alone, but has been made possible through the support, guidance, and companionship of many people. I would like to take this opportunity to express my sincere gratitude to everyone who has contributed to this important chapter of my life.

First and foremost, I would like to express my deepest gratitude to my supervisors, Lemeng and Harro. Dear Lemeng, thank you for your patient and thoughtful guidance throughout my PhD. Beyond your academic support, you have profoundly shaped the way I think about science and approach life. Your rigorous scientific attitude, sharp insights, and attention to detail have helped me develop the ability to think independently and analyze problems systematically. Dear Harro, thank you for your continuous support and encouragement, especially during challenging moments in my research. Your critical advice helped me overcome difficulties and regain confidence when facing obstacles. I am also deeply grateful for the open and supportive research environment you created, which allowed me to freely explore my scientific interests and truly enjoy my PhD journey despite its pressures. I extend my heartfelt respect and gratitude to both of you.

I would also like to thank all my colleagues in the Plant Hormone Biology group at the University of Amsterdam. Thank you for your support, collaboration, and the inspiring discussions that have greatly contributed to my development. The warm and positive atmosphere in the lab made this journey both enjoyable and meaningful.

Dear Kathrin, thank you for your constructive feedback during group meetings and for kindly agreeing to serve as a member of my PhD committee. Dear Rahul, thank you for your help and for sharing your knowledge in microbiology, from which I learned a great deal. Dear Sjors, I am grateful for your support in untargeted metabolomics, which significantly strengthened my expertise in this field, and I also sincerely appreciate your willingness to serve as my paranymph during my PhD defense. Dear Yuting, Davar, and Kristyna, thank you for your help with targeted metabolomics and for your kindness in daily life, which helped me quickly integrate into the lab environment. Dear Suzanne, Mario, and Jurre, thank you for your continuous support in both work and daily lab life.

Dear Changsheng, Kai, Hui, Wenxi, and Taichi, thank you for your support from both plant and microbial perspectives, which broadened my understanding of my research topic. Dear Atharv and Kangning, thank you for your help with cyst nematode hatching and tomato VIGS experiments in the SolA project. Dear Mingxiao, thank you for your help in lab life and your willingness to serve as my paranymph during my PhD defense; I will always remember our time together organizing lab activities. Dear Michelle and Wenyi, thank you for your support in elemental analysis. Dear Raja, thank you for your assistance in microbial metabolite analysis. Dear Fred and Sébastien, thank you for your help with data analysis and visualization. Dear Márcio, Pornkanok, Toine, Guanting (Erica), and Roland, thank you for your valuable feedback during PHB group meetings. Dear Elia and Malin, thank you for your help during plant harvesting and for the enjoyable moments we shared. Dear Masato, I will always remember our conversations. Dear Julian, Michel, and Saadat, although our time together was short, I will always cherish the memories of exploring Amsterdam together-its restaurants, beers, and hidden gems. All these interactions, both academic and personal, have become invaluable memories of my PhD journey.

I would also like to thank my colleagues from the Green Life Sciences section at the University of Amsterdam. Dear Maike, Martijn, Sebastian, Frank, Teun, Ronald, Michel, Rob, Petra, and Silke, thank you for your insightful comments during Plant Science Meetings, from which I learned a great deal. In particular, dear Martijn and Teun, thank you very much for taking the time to serve on my PhD committee. I would also like to thank Ludek and Harold for their support and advice during greenhouse experiments-I truly enjoyed working with you.

I am especially grateful to my English teacher, Harro K., for helping me improve my academic English skills throughout my PhD; this will benefit me for the rest of my career. I would also like to sincerely thank my PhD committee members. Dear Leendert, thank you for your valuable suggestions, for providing Bacillus resources, and for serving on my committee. Dear Akos (Leiden University), thank you for your interest in my work and for taking the time to be part of my committee. I am also very grateful to my co-authors. Dear Ernst-Jan, Sara, and Cees, thank you for your contributions to the SolA project.

My sincere thanks also go to my friends. Dear Ziran, I still remember when we departed from Xiamen together and started this journey in a foreign country. Thank you for your companionship and support over the past five years. Dear Lulu and Wenwen, thank you for welcoming us at the airport and for your continued support in daily life. Dear Jenny (Zhangjingwen) and Rui, thank you for your companionship and for the wonderful travel memories we shared. Dear Xinyu, thank you for your support in daily life and for the enjoyable time we spent learning English together. Dear Fangxu, Fangxue, and Mingxue, thank you for your companionship-I will always remember the games and barbecues we shared. Dear Jiajun, Cheng, Qingqing, and Zekun, thank you for bringing so much joy into my life. Dear Honglei, I feel very fortunate that we could meet again abroad after our Master's studies-long live our friendship. Dear Jie, thank you for your help with data analysis in my thesis; it was my pleasure to have you as a co-author. Special thanks to Yu-Hsien and Judy for your valuable suggestions on my project and your support in daily life.

Finally, I would like to express my deepest gratitude to my family. My dearest wife, Jing, this journey has not been easy, and I am truly grateful for your unwavering support and understanding. No matter where I am, you have always been my strongest support. I would also like to thank my parents and all my family members. During times of pressure and uncertainty, your unconditional trust and encouragement gave me the strength to continue and complete this long and challenging journey. Your love and support have always been my greatest motivation. I dedicate this work to you with all my gratitude.

The PhD journey is not only an academic endeavor but also a process of personal growth and self-discovery. It has been my great fortune to meet all of you along the way. Although words cannot fully express my gratitude, I would like to extend my heartfelt thanks to everyone who has supported and guided me.
