Finally I would like to express my very deep and sincere gratitude to all the contributors of this project and all who helped me with and towards it. Erik, thank you for making it come true. These years have not been exactly as expected, something we all should know by now, but you made it happen.

As all started at the allergy department, I would like to thank you all who were resistant enough to accept among them a little foreigner without having a big anaphylactic reaction. You all made Holland very attractive and with a magical touch, turned 3 months into 6 years.

To all IPers, thanks for making the lab feel like another home and bringing me the technical and linguistic support I needed.

I never would have imagined that going to The Netherlands would make me travel around Europe and beyond its borders. Hopefully, life will bring me new and such pleasant experiences.

I could not make an exhaustive list of all people who helped me go through all these years in the best conditions, the ones who have gone away or forward and the ones who will always remain.

To all of you and to my “adoptive parents”:

Thank you, Dank jullie wel, Merci, Grazie mille…

Enfin, merci à vous tous qui de France avez suivi l’évolution de mon parcours, parfois chaotique, à travers l’autre pays du fromage qui s’est révélé bien plus que ce triste cliché. Papa, maman, merci d’avoir toujours été là pour que je poursuive mes rêves et pas seulement… Laurent, ton support inconditionnel et ton enthousiasme inaltérable, malgré les obstacles que pouvaient représenter la distance, le stress et les profonds moments de découragement, m’ont permis de parvenir à ce dénouement auquel j’ai souvent douté; pour tout cela et tout le reste mille merci.
