Regulating urban office provision: a study of the ebb and flow of regimes of urbanisation in Amsterdam and Frankfurt am Main, 1945-2000

Ploeger, R.A.

Citation for published version (APA):
Contents

Acknowledgements ix

1. Introduction: Frankfurt am Main and Amsterdam as office cities 1
   1.1 Office structures versus office planning in Frankfurt and Amsterdam: a first look 1
   1.2 The office and urban development 8
   1.3 Towards a plausible ‘set of claims’ on the regulation of urban office development 10
   1.4 Research question and structure of this book 14

2. The city as a node of accumulation: Theoretical perspectives on ‘Actual’ Urbanisation 17
   2.1 Introduction 17
   2.2 Urban planning and urban development 18
   2.3 Theories of structural urban economic change 22
   2.4 The actual shaping of cities 27
   2.5 Positions in the real-estate development process 32
   2.6 Conclusion: towards a theoretical research agenda 38

3. The regulation of urbanisation: Theoretical considerations on planning and urban development 39
   3.1 Introduction 39
   3.2 The role of the city-state in the production of space 40
   3.3 The regulation approach 41
   3.4 Theoretical concepts as analytical lenses 47
   3.5 The set of claims regarding the regulation of office provision 50
   3.6 Analysing the emergence of regulation 55
   3.7 Conclusion: the role of sociospatial regulation in processes of urban development and office provision 58

4. Amsterdam 1945-1968: The inner city as a CBD 59
   4.1 Introduction 59
   4.2 Recovery plans and policies for Amsterdam 60
   4.3 Economic expansion politics rebutted 70
   4.4 The end of expansion politics – The struggle over the Second Report on the Inner City 75
   4.5 Analysis: The structure of office provision and regime of urbanisation during the industrialisation age

4.6 Conclusion: the regime of urbanization during the industrialization years

   5.1 Introduction
   5.2 The fade out of industrial policies
   5.3 1968-1978: From economic expansion to social preservation
   5.4 The southbound drift of the office district
   5.5 1978-1985: economic crisis and beyond
   5.6 1985-1988: persistent urban problems and the onset for growth politics
   5.7 Analysis: urbanisation and economic crisis
   5.8 Conclusion: The regime of urbanisation during the period of accumulation change

   6.1 Introduction
   6.2 Urban competitiveness as a political doctrine
   6.3 Economic recovery – Amsterdam’s luck reversed
   6.4 Recent office planning in Amsterdam
   6.5 Analysis: the structure of office provision and the regime of urbanisation at the turn of the Millennium
   6.6 Conclusion: the regime of urbanisation

7. Frankfurt 1945-1977: Recovery from the war and the economic boom
   7.1 Introduction
   7.2 1945-1950: A city rising out of the ruins
   7.3 1950-1960: The transition to growth politics
   7.4 1960-1969: From boom to bust – the end of the miracle
   7.5 1969-1972: Planning the uncontrollable office boom
   7.6 1972-1977: Stagnation, the SPD reign, and the Westend
   7.7 Analysis: the structure of office provision and the regime of urbanisation in a booming city
   7.8 Conclusion: the regime of urbanisation during the Wirtschaftswunder

   8.1 Introduction
   8.2 The new political landscape
8.3 Urban management CDU style: the unfolding of world-city strategies 209
8.4 Planning the world city in times of economic decline 211
8.5 The collapse of the CDU government 219
8.6 Analysis of the regime of urbanisation and structure of provision 222
8.7 Conclusion: the regime of urbanisation during the Wallman era 226

9.1 Introduction 229
9.2 1989-1993: social ecological reform politics 230
9.3 1993-present: liberal growth politics and fragmenting landscapes of power 240
9.4 Analysis of the regime of urbanisation and structure of provision 247
9.5 Conclusion: the regime of urbanisation at a cross-roads 251

10. Conclusions: Local sociospatial regulation in a globalising world 253
10.1 Introduction 253
10.2 The theoretical relations in locally dependent processes of urbanisation 253
10.3 Looking back at post-war regimes of urbanisation in Amsterdam and Frankfurt am Main 256
10.4 Urban development and the market 265
10.5 The rhythm and movement of place shaping through the state 269
10.6 Epilogue. Spatial fixity in the post-modern economy: the fate of cities 275

References 283
Samenvatting 295
Dankwoord 305