The influence of self and similarity on immediate affective impressions of people
Ruys, K.I.

Citation for published version (APA):

General rights
It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations
If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: http://uba.uva.nl/en/contact, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.
Acknowledgments

Finally the moment of finishing up my PhD-thesis has arrived. When I look back at the years I worked on my PhD-project, it feels like a turbulent period. Supervisors coming and going, moving to four different offices in the building, working hard to change the experimental software at the last moment because of a new idea, meeting lots of new people, and so on. Although in the first years the thought of leaving the project crossed my mind several times, I decided halfway my second year that Social Psychology is indeed the place to be. This insight and the pleasure I take in designing new experiments and in improving my writing skills were crucial for the completion of this thesis.

Therefore I want to start with expressing my gratitude to Ernestine for helping me gain this insight and for her valuable research advice. Furthermore, I deeply thank Russell for taking over the supervision of my project, even though (at that time) immediate affective impressions of individual people were not in the center of his research interests, and for being a wonderful source of inspiration. Together, Ernestine and Russell are the best supervising team a promovendus can wish for, both on a scientific and a social level.

Also, I am grateful to Nanne for his support, his careful remarks on my papers, and the fact that he was always enthusiastic about my work. Moreover, I want to thank Diederik for his “mood” suggestion and for giving me the opportunity to pursue a PhD in Social Psychology.

In my view, good roommates are as important as good supervisors. I want to thank Frenk, Yaël, Helma, Jaap, Karin, and Catharine (although in effect Catharine and I never shared an office) for putting up with me and for the fun, but also for the support when experimental results were not as promising as expected. I also want to mention Mark who is my favorite person to discuss theories on affective processes and consciousness with.

Furthermore, I would like to thank all members of the Up-club, the emotion group, the KLI social cognition group, the group-group, the attitudes-and-habits group of the EAESP summerschool in Marburg, and the social cognition lab meetings for sharing their interesting views and their useful comments concerning my research.

Last but not least, I am greatly indebted to Jasper, Myrthe, Maddy, and Theo for their inexhaustible confidence in me.

Amsterdam, 3 november 2003
The Kurt Lewin Institute Dissertation Series started in 1997. Since 2002 the following dissertations have been published:

2002-1 Marius van Dijke: Understanding power dynamics. Effects of social comparison on tendencies to change power and power differences

2002-2 Bianca Beersma: Small group negotiation and team performance

2002-3 Xu Huang: Just a matter of taste? One nation's job satisfiers are another nation's job dissatisfiers

2002-4 Veerle Brenninkmeijer: A drug called comparison: The pains and gains of social comparison among individuals suffering from burnout

2002-5 Dimitri van der Linden: Mental Fatigue and Goal-directed Behavior: Flexibility, Planning, and the Regulation of Actions

2002-6 Johanna Schönbrock-Adema: De ontwikkeling en evaluatie van een zelfinstructieprogramma voor een training in basisgespreksvaardigheden

2002-7 Jan-Willem van Prooijen: Procedural Justice and Group Dynamics

2002-8 Boukje Keijzer: Changing perspectives: Conclusions and conjectures about context effects in group perception

2002-9 Daan Scheepers: The social functions of in-group bias

2002-10 Johan Karremans: Forgiveness: Examining its consequences

2002-11 Dianne van Hemert: Patterns of Cross-Cultural Differences in Psychology: A Meta-Analytic Approach

2002-12 Judit Arends: Psychological Acculturation of Turkish Migrants in the Netherlands: Issues in Theory and Assessment

2003-1 Femke Bennenbroek: Social comparison and coping with radiation therapy. The significance of different dimensions of comparison

2003-3 Rick van Baaren: Mimicry: A social perspective
2003-4 Michaéla Schippers: Reflexivity in teams
2003-5 Heleen van Mierlo: Self-managing teamwork and psychological well-being 2003-6 Ruben Taris: Person-Environment Fit: A longitudinal study of the interaction between employees characteristics and work environmental characteristics
2003-7 Rob Holland: On the structure and consequences of attitude strength
2003-8 Camiel Beukeboom: How mood turns on language
2003-9 Joost Miedema: Fairness and the Self 2004-1 Wolfgang Steinel: Misleading in social decision-making: A motivational approach
2004-2 Edwin van Hooft: Job seeking as planned behavior. In search of group differences
2004-3 Kirsten Ruys: The influence of self and similarity on immediate affective impressions of people