Preface

I need to thank a never-ending list of people who made it possible for me to conclude this research project. First of all, I would like to thank my promoter Bob Wielinga for his guidance and time spent correcting the various drafts of this thesis as well as investing significant amounts of energy to guarantee the successful conclusion of this project.

Bert Bredeweg, my supervisor, for having accepted me as his Ph.D. student and for doing everything possibly imaginable to guarantee that I smoothly adapted to a new country and culture and particularly the new working environment at the SWI.

The UCDB for financing the first three years of this research project and especially Conceiçao Butera and Maria das Graças Bruno Marietto for forcing me not to be lazy, as I would have preferred, and providing the intellectual and financial means to pursuit higher studies.

My dear friends Gaston and Machiel for always being there for me. My friend Roland who spent an uncountable amount of hours (sometimes till 3 o’clock in the morning or later) implementing parts of MOBUM and fixing the last serious bugs, making it possible to conduct the field experiment on time. Anders, my "twin brother", the most easy-going character I have met to date, for being my "twin brother".

My good friend Ereni for never having quit sending supporting words per email even when it took me weeks to reply to her. My good friend Leda for the tasty barbecues during the relaxed times in Brazil on holiday.

Saskia for being so kind and ridding me of most of the administrative work during my whole period in the Netherlands and also when I was already living in Austria.

All my colleagues at SWI and especially Jan and Wouter for lively lunch talks and for providing an agreeable work environment even if I did not manage to master the Dutch language until the very last end.

Mireille, a discrete and super positive-influence on my not always positive supervisor.

Vienna’s Baby club for providing the energy needed to take care of my adorable son while writing the last chapters of the thesis.

My mum for being a fighter and a role-model of strength who never gives up. My aunt Noêmia for her unconditional support and encouragement. My sisters Darti and Giselle, for being the best friends that anyone could ever hope for. My grandma Olimpia (in memoria), my grandpa Valdo, Piet Jan, "the saint", and all members of my family who always supported me in some way or another.

My little Huguinho for never having complained (he hadn’t learned how to do so by then) for the long hours that I spent writing, often failing to give him the needed attention.

My beloved Dani for being who he is.
