ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Alhamdullillah, Finally I can finish writing this thesis. This work would not have been possible to be realised without helping and supporting from many people which is involved both directly or indirectly.

Firstly, let me spend a few words to express my gratitude to my promotor Prof. Mark Golden. Mark, thanks for the enthusiasm and patience for explaining all the aspects of surface sensitive technique to me. I know that you have read my thesis’s manuscript very carefully and also have corrected the silly mistakes of my english, the job that I have to do my self. One things that I always feel relieve after we had discussions both in scientific case and non-scientific case. I appreciate also for all advices that you gave to me concerning the path that I have to take for my future life in science. I think I am so lucky to have a supervisor like you.

I would like to thank to all members (former) of quantum electron matter group: Ying Kai, Anton, Sharareh, Sanne, Freek, Wing Kiu, Rosanne, Rein, Eric and Wim. It was a great pleasure for me to work with you guys. Your assistance and pleasant atmosphere were important factors in the enjoyment of my work.

Most of the work presented in this thesis were carried out using the facilities in research group outside the van der Waals-Zeeman Institute (WZI). I would like to express my sincere thanks to Dr. Luc Patthey, Dr. Ming Shi and Dr. Vladimir Strocov of the Paul Scherrer Institute in Villigen, Dr. Matti Lindroos of University of Helsinki, Prof. Jörg Fink, Dr. Sergey Borisenko, Dr. Sasha Kordyuk and Dr. Rolf Follath of IFW Dresden and BESSY synchrotron radiation facilities and Dr. Seppo Sahrakorpi of Northwestern University for their help and fine collaboration. Also, I would like to thank Dr. Adam Kaminski and Prof. Matthias Eschrig for the nice and helpful discussions.

This thesis could not have been completed without help from all staff members of the WZI and stichting FOM (Fundamenteel Onderzoek der Materie). Many thanks are given to Ton Gortenmulder, Huib Luigjes and Bert Moleman for their support in sample preparation and characterisation; René Rik for the supply of cryogenic liquids; Bert Zwart for personally bring me to Rotterdam airport; Henk and Ben Harisson and many others for support from the mechanical and electronic workshops; Marriet Bos, Rita Vinig, Luuk Lusink, Ineke Baas and Annette Bor for all administration assistance; and Dr. Jeroen Goedkoop and Dr. Anne de Visser for fruitful discussions in our group meeting.

I would like also to thank the committee members of my thesis for their patience and their time to read the preliminary version of the manuscript as well as for their comments. It is very useful to improve the quality of the final version of my thesis.

I am indebted to Stan for providing me the Latex template of this thesis. Many thanks also to Rosanne and Jesse for translating the summary of this thesis into the Dutch language (as well as Sanne for making the finishing touch version of it).

I am also thankful to my colleagues from other group in the WZI, Dennis, Leonid, Gianni, Alessia, Huy, Fendy, Meena, Jorge, Nacho, Salvo, Ha, Oleg, Sara, Tracy, Mounir, Asmae, Rene and Vijayakumar for the friendship during my pleasant period in the WZI.

I wish to thank to my Indonesian friends whom I have met in the Netherlands, in particular Deden, Gunaryadi, Elfahmi, Zayd, Chalid, Lukman, Hasyim, Iskandar, Eko, Gustiandi, Agus, Syafii, Winarna, Zaenal, Luthfil, Bambang, Supardi, Ian, Ahsan, Oki, Wahyu, Agung, Suhail, Ari, Ammar, Hafidz, Ardian, Ridwan and many others which I can not mention it here one by one. Also I would like to thank the Indonesian Moslem Community in Amsterdam (PPME). Thank you all for the warm relationship and time communicating with me as well as providing me a shelter when I travel across the Netherlands.

Finally, my deepest thanks are devoted to my beloved family: my father, my mother, my brothers, my wive Fadhilah and my daughter Layyina, for their patience, encouragements and constant support for me.
