Time flies when you're having fun. It feels like yesterday I was sitting in my office on the first day of my PhD project. Now, 4 and a half years later, the chapters of this book are finished and all that is left is a small, final section on the last page of this dissertation, which I would like to use to say thank you to all people who have somehow contributed to the research reported in this dissertation and/or my personal life.

First I'd like to thank my supervisors Carsten De Dreu and Bianca Beersma for giving me the opportunity to work in such a great environment. Their enthusiasm for research is infectious and their help and ideas throughout these past years have been invaluable. I particularly thank Bianca for always making time for me, even when she was extremely busy herself, for her insightful comments and for her support and involvement.

Thank you to my (old and new) colleagues. You play the cards you're dealt with, and my colleagues definitely are lucky cards. Thank you all for creating such a fun and intellectual stimulating place – both during office hours and after-hours.

Thank you to my family and friends for providing excellent pastime and support. A special thank you goes to my parents. Thank you for your continuous encouragement, for your sincere interest in my life and for your love. I'm glad that the product of my work finally lies in front of you.

Time flies when you're happy. Thank you Bi, for being here and for travelling through time alongside me.
