If somebody had told me 10 years ago that I would make a PhD on West African frogs, I probably would have laughed a lot. Back then I just had started my biology studies and was far away from thinking of a PhD. And it had been a long time ago since I had collected tadpoles to bring them home and to raise them (and normally they were dead after a short time). But my first frog work in Africa, which I did in the wonderful Taï National Park in Côte d’Ivoire, sparked the fire. I did not want to stop and it is difficult to think about not traveling to Africa and looking for frogs anymore one day. Frog work in (West) Africa is so much more than ‘just’ doing research and I am extremely grateful for the privilege of being able to do this work, for the many field trips, and for all experiences I made, especially for having seen great places and having met many remarkable people.

Without my supervisor Mark-Oliver (MO) Rödel all this would not have been possible. I thank him so much for his great ideas, all his support and the confidence he had in me. I also thank Michael Veith for his support and his willingness to write the PhD proposal with us and to supervise part of my PhD project. Three years ago I started my PhD within the Ecology Department at Mainz University. Only three months later I left to Amsterdam, but I will never forget the wonderful time I had in this great and friendly working group and I will always enjoy coming back. Steph Menken was so nice to accept being my promoter after I became an ‘orphan’ at the IBED. Thank you very much for your encouraging support and kindness. I also thank the IBED for accepting me to stay and letting me finish my PhD although my supervisor had left. A big thank you goes to Henry Hooghiemstra, Joost Duivenvoorden, Jan Wolf, Tim Halliday, Marc Sosef, and Peter van Tienderen who agreed to join my PhD committee.

The intensive field work in West Africa was facilitated by many helpful people and financial support from different sources. The latter support is mentioned in the respective chapters or publications. The wonderful colleagues, students, assistants, drivers and guides who joined and helped me during my field trips are by far too many to mention them all. Special thanks go to Abdulai Barrie and Mamadou Saliou Diallo (and his family). Hopefully more projects can be realized together in the future. I also thank Alex Cudjoe Agyei, Caleb Ofori Boateng, Ben Agbozo, Johnathan Johnny, Néma-Soua Loua, Mohammed Alhassane Bangoura, and Joseph Doumbia. I enjoyed the field work with you. very much. The same is true for my dear colleagues Ron Demey, Kadiatou Soumah, Charlotte Couch, Eladj Ousmane Tounkara, Thomas Williams, KD Dijkstra, and Ara Monadjem. I also thank Johannes, Meike, Laura and Ede.

I am very grateful to the many people who support me with my school children project in Sierra Leone and thank Abdulai Barrie and Chief Kenneh for their help.

Joana, thank you for being my best friend in Amsterdam. I will miss you a lot. Thanks also to Paola, Sabrina, Nuno, Mathias, and Meliz for all the nice evenings, dinners, beers, discussions, etc. I hope there can be more in the future. Thank you, Lin and Joachim, for your fantastic help in the lab. Lin and Mieke, thanks for being my paranymphs. And also thank you to Mansour, Peter K., Betsie, Vera, Katja, Noemi, Alex, Thomas, Hans, Giovanni, Peter R., Rob, Eric, Jan, Heleen, Tanya, Betty, and Mary (and many others) for the nice chats and for having been around in the lab and at the IBED. Vera and Katja, thank you for increasing my invitations to Dutch houses by 100%. Unfortunately, I still can count them on one hand…after three years! En Vera, dank je wel voor jou hulp met de Nederlandse samenvatting. Mansour, thank you so much for helpfulness. It is great to know that there is somebody like you on whom I always can count. Saskia, thank you for your nice thesis topic and your nice thesis book. I definitely liked many of your ideas and adopted them. Jan, thank your very much for your help with some figures and the thesis cover. Nuno, thanks a million times for helping with the thesis layout. Special thanks also go to Piotr Naskrecki who allowed me to use some of his beautiful frog pictures. Maike, thank you very much for your help and constant support, especially with the French summary. Merci aussi à Sophie et Arnaud. There are also many more friends who encouraged me a lot with their support and interest. I cannot cite them all, sorry, but some: danke Karin, Nina, Dana, Jutta, Juli, Martin, Leschek, Patrick, Thorsten, Jes, Dagmar, Evi, Christiane, Joachim, Alex, Doro, Stephan, Nergess, Katrin, Rahel, Lukas, und all Ihr anderen! Mille grazie Angelica, Bruno, Serena, Silvia e Luca! Mieke und Andreas, vielen Dank für alles und dafür, dass Ihr Euch so um mich sorgt und immer alles so interessant findet, was ich mache.

Und schließlich ein großes Dankeschön an meine Familie, Gisela, Christoph, Katharina, Hannah, Florian, Felix und Maike. Danke für Euer Interesse und Eure Unterstützung. Und danke, dass Ihr mir verzeiht, dass ich so oft irgendwo in Afrika herumspringe, anstatt bei Euch zu sein. Liebe Geschwister, tausend Dank, dass ich mich immer so hundertprozentig auf Euch verlassen kann.
Ich habe Euch alle sehr lieb. Felix, Florian, and Maike, many thanks for your help when I broke my elbow so shortly before I wanted to hand in the thesis. Thanks also to the surgeon and the nice help in the hospital and special thanks also to Chris, the physiotherapist who helped me so that my arm got better very fast.

Now, this PhD is almost over. Of course, in the end it seemed as if time was flying and it does not feel as if more than three years are gone already. Fortunately, already right from the start I had some very ‘special’ support that assured a successful PhD project - actually nothing (or maybe better not too much) could go wrong. I want to thank the Paramount Chief of the Leklebi Traditional Area in western Ghana, Mr. Togbe Agboka VI (you see him on the picture) and his eldest for the many traditional ceremonies they held for me and my project any time I stepped by (which always provided good opportunities to ask the favor of mother earth and the ancestors by spitting and spilling (and mainly drinking) the local gin).

Yaarama Barrie. Thank you for your unique and great love, enthusiasm, and support during the major part of my PhD. You gave me indescribable happiness, motivation, and strength. With you, I was the happiest person on earth.

I am very sorry in case I forgot somebody. For sure there are many more people I did not mention, but who supported me and helped me a lot. I will not forget this and will always keep you in my heart.
I thank you all very much!
