Trade unions and the work-family balance
Schreuder, K.P.A.B.

Citation for published version (APA):

General rights
It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations
If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: http://uba.uva.nl/en/contact, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.
TABLE OF CONTENTS

1 INTRODUCING COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AND THE WORK-FAMILY BALANCE . 1
   1.1 Female labour market participation in the Netherlands......................... 2
       Causes for the increasing female labour force........................................ 4
       Implications of the increasing female labour force.................................. 5
   1.2 Regulating the work-family balance..................................................... 6
       Regulating formal work-family arrangements in Dutch Law...................... 7
       Work-family provisions in Dutch collective labour agreements................ 9
   1.3 The DUCADAM dataset......................................................................... 12

2 TRADE UNIONS: (NON-)MEMBERS AND COORDINATION ....................... 17
   2.1 Collective bargaining ........................................................................... 17
       Bargaining levels...................................................................................... 20
       Collective bargaining in the Netherlands.................................................. 22
       Extension of collective agreements.......................................................... 23
       FNV policy formation.............................................................................. 25
       Collective bargaining topics..................................................................... 27
       How did work-family provisions come to be a part of the union agenda?..... 29
   2.2 Trade unions, members and non-members............................................ 30
       Four theoretical union-member models..................................................... 33
       Existing members versus potential new members...................................... 35
   2.3 Coordinated agenda setting................................................................. 37
       Vertical coordination through central policy development......................... 37
       Horizontal coordination through communication between colleagues......... 39

3 THE WORK-FAMILY BALANCE IN COLLECTIVE AGREEMENTS ............. 43
   3.1 Hypotheses about the work-family balance in CLAs ............................ 43
   3.2 Variables of the model and regression methods ..................................... 49
       The sample of CLAs.................................................................................. 50
       The dependent variables.......................................................................... 51
       The independent and control variables..................................................... 52
       Test methods............................................................................................ 55
   3.3 Results ................................................................................................. 57
       The work-family balance in Dutch CLAs.................................................. 57
       The role of gender in the work-family balance in Dutch CLAs.................... 62
   3.4 Looking into the work-family score.................................................... 71
   3.5 Conclusion ........................................................................................... 79