Trade unions and the work-family balance
Schreuder, K.P.A.B.

Citation for published version (APA):
LIST OF FIGURES

Figure 1.1. Active female labour force from 1970 to 2005, in the Netherlands..... 3
Figure 1.2. Chronological development of sectoral and company CLAs in the banking industry in the Netherlands............................................................ 14
Figure 2.1. Policy formation within the FNV. ................................................. 25
Figure 2.2. Two opposite models of trade union focus .................................... 31
Figure 2.3. A theoretical model of factors affecting trade unions’ agenda setting processes. .......................................................................................... 42
Figure 3.1. Research model with independent and dependent variables......... 48
Figure 3.2. CLAs in the sample, categorised by aggregate level branch of industry........................................................................................................... 50
Figure 3.3. Incidence of work-family provisions in Dutch FNV bargained collective agreements. .................................................................................... 58
Figure 4.1. A time-line representation of CLA development............................. 85
Figure 4.2. The theoretical model of factors related to the bargaining agenda... 89
Figure 4.3. Restricted availability of CLA and agenda data resulting in an agenda sample of N=278................................................................................. 92
Figure 4.4. Frequency distribution of agendas (and CLAs) per FNV industry group. .......................................................................................................... 92
Figure 4.5. Scattergram of the work-family score of CLA0 and the agenda work-family score. .......................................................................................... 95
Figure 4.6. Trade unions’ work-family provision proposals for improvement... 103
Figure 4.7. Histogram of work-family increase factors...................................... 104
Figure 4.8. Histogram of the share of female employees per CLA. ................. 106
Figure 4.9. Histogram of the work-family score of CLA0 ................................ 107
Figure 4.10. Scatterplot of the Precise WFb score of the previous CLA and the Agenda WFb score. .......................................................... 112
Figure 4.11. Agenda work-family scores related to the work-family score in FNV central recommendations. ................................................................. 115
Figure 5.1. The theoretical model of factors related to the bargaining agenda... 125
Figure 5.2. The theoretical model of factors related to the bargaining agenda. 147
Figure 6.1. Empirical model of factors affecting the work-family balance in CLAs. .............................................................................................................. 151
Figure 6.2. First empirical model of factors affecting the work-family balance in trade unions’ bargaining agendas. .................................................... 153
Figure 6.3. Second empirical model of factors affecting the work-family balance in trade unions’ bargaining agendas. ............................................. 156