

UvA-DARE (Digital Academic Repository)

Living in concentrated poverty

Pinkster, F.M.

Link to publication

Citation for published version (APA):
Pinkster, F. M. (2009). Living in concentrated poverty.

General rights

It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations

If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: <https://uba.uva.nl/en/contact>, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.

The social consequences of concentrated poverty are a recurring theme in urban policy and have received much attention in academic research in the form of neighborhood effect studies. This dissertation explores the ways in which living in a disadvantaged neighborhood negatively affects residents' labor market participation and long term socio-economic prospects. By way of a case study in the Netherlands the research focuses on explanations for neighborhood effects relating to the population composition of low-income neighborhoods. These include neighborhood-based processes of social isolation, negative socialization, social disorganization and mechanisms relating to the formal social infrastructure.

Fenne M. Pinkster obtained her Master's degree in Human Geography at the Universiteit van Amsterdam. She continued her studies at the Amsterdam Institute for Metropolitan and International Development Studies (AMIDSt) to pursue a Ph.D. in the field of Urban Geography.