This manuscript was typeset with pdf $\epsilon$ -T $\text{\E}$ X. The working platforms were Windows XP Pro and Mac OS X v10.3.9.

Text editing was done largely in WinEdt using the MiK $\text{\T}$ E $\text{\X}$  package. The linguistic examples and trees were formatted using the gb4e and qtree macros respectively.

The body type is 10 point Latin Modern. The Latin Modern fonts are derived from the famous Computer Modern fonts designed by Donald E. Knuth and first published by the American Mathematical Society (AMS) in 1997. One of the main extensions is the addition of an extensive set of diacritical characters, covering many scripts based on the Latin character set, mainly european, but not only, most notably Vietnamese. The Latin Modern project is authored by Bogusław “Jacko” Jackowski and Janusz M. Nowacki aka “Ulan”, supported in L $\text{\A}$ T $\text{\E}$ X matters by Marcin Woliński.
