

About the author

Katharina Paul completed her undergraduate education in Political Science at Tel Aviv University (Israel), the University of Vienna (Austria), and the University of Essex (UK). Following her MA in Ideology and Discourse Analysis obtained from the University of Essex (2003), she completed a five-month traineeship at the European Commission in Brussels (DG Education and Culture). From 2004-2008, she worked as a PhD researcher at the Amsterdam School for Social Science Research (ASSR) and the Department of Political Science at the University of Amsterdam. She is currently working as a senior researcher at the Interdisciplinary Centre for Comparative Research in the social sciences (ICCR) in Vienna (Austria), where she conducts research on food safety policy as well as public health policy.

Food Safety: A Matter of Taste?

Katharina T. Paul

Food Safety: A Matter of Taste?

Food Safety Policy in England, Germany, the Netherlands, and at the Level of the European Union

Katharina T. Paul