Working gendered boundaries: temporary migration experiences of Bangladeshi women in the Malaysian export industry from a multi-sited perspective
Rudnick, A.M.

Citation for published version (APA):

General rights
It is not permitted to download or to forward/distribute the text or part of it without the consent of the author(s) and/or copyright holder(s), other than for strictly personal, individual use, unless the work is under an open content license (like Creative Commons).

Disclaimer/Complaints regulations
If you believe that digital publication of certain material infringes any of your rights or (privacy) interests, please let the Library know, stating your reasons. In case of a legitimate complaint, the Library will make the material inaccessible and/or remove it from the website. Please Ask the Library: http://uba.uva.nl/en/contact, or a letter to: Library of the University of Amsterdam, Secretariat, Singel 425, 1012 WP Amsterdam, The Netherlands. You will be contacted as soon as possible.

UvA-DARE (Digital Academic Repository)
TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements ...................................................... 9

Chapter 1: Introduction ...................................................13
1.1 Temporary labour migration ..........................................14
1.2 South to South migration ............................................15
1.3 The feminization of migration .......................................15
1.4 Focus of the study ..................................................17
1.5 Outline of the book ................................................18

Chapter 2: Engendering Migration Theory ...............................19
2.1 Why does gender matter? .............................................20
2.2 Crossing boundaries: towards an engendered theoretical framework . . 22
2.3 The pre-migration stage .............................................25
2.4 The migration stage ................................................36
2.5 The post-migration stage ............................................42
2.6 Conclusion .........................................................44

Chapter 3: The Sending and the Receiving Country: Bangladesh and Malaysia. . 45
3.1 Bangladesh: Economic and demographic context .......... 45
3.2 Migration: scope and direction of flows ..........................48
3.3 Women, marriage and work in Bangladesh .......................51
3.4 Female migration ..................................................55
3.5 The recruitment process: government policies, recruiters and procedures . . .57
3.6 Destinations: the Middle East and Malaysia .................59
3.7 Malaysia: Economic and Demographic context ...............60
3.8 The role of the manufacturing sector until the 1997 crisis ....62
3.9 Foreign workers ....................................................64
3.10 The Asian economic crisis and its impact on migrant workers . . 66
3.11 Migration policies ................................................68
3.12 Legal protection of migrant workers ............................72
3.13 Public discourse ................................................73
3.14 Conclusion .........................................................74

Chapter 4: The Field Setting: Methodological Issues Regarding Gender-sensitive Research ...................................................77
4.1 The research sites ....................................................78
4.2 Research methods ................................................82
4.3 Respondents' and researchers' social position in the study ...............86
4.4 Conclusion .........................................................97

Chapter 5: Why Migrate? ................................................99
5.1 Bangladeshi female migrants: socio-economic characteristics ............99
5.2 Why did the women migrate? ......................................102
5.3 Economic motivations .............................................105
5.4 Personal motivations for migration ................................107
5.5 Socioculturally embeddedness of economic incentives ...............109
5.6 Men's migration motivations ......................................123
5.7 Conclusion .........................................................127
Chapter 6: From Desire to Decision and Departure .......................... 129
6.1 Decision-making processes of female migrants and gendered constraints 129
6.2 Decisions, strategies and resources ........................................ 131
6.3 Tapping into the migrant institution ...................................... 140
6.4 Conclusion ........................................................................... 147

Chapter 7: Working in Malaysia's Export Industry: Conditions and Wages 151
7.1 Companies ........................................................................... 151
7.2 Factors affecting employment conditions ................................. 152
7.3 Collective action ................................................................... 166
7.4 Divisions in the labour force .................................................. 168
7.5 Coping mechanisms ............................................................. 172
7.6 Contract renewal ................................................................. 175
7.7 Absconding .......................................................................... 176
7.8 Differences between migrant women and men ......................... 180
7.9 Job satisfaction ................................................................. 182
7.10 Conclusion ........................................................................... 183

Chapter 8: Living in Malaysia: Negotiating Two Cultures .................. 187
8.1 Malaysia and Bangladesh: differences in gender roles .................. 188
8.2 The new social environment .................................................... 190
8.3 Defamation ........................................................................... 195
8.4 Women about women ............................................................ 199
8.5 Courtship ............................................................................ 202
8.6 Potential grooms and marriages .............................................. 206
8.7 Staying on ............................................................................ 211
8.8 Conclusion ........................................................................... 213

Chapter 9: Back in Bangladesh: a New Beginning? ......................... 217
9.1 Remittances ........................................................................... 218
9.2 Allocation of remittances ....................................................... 221
9.3 Money and gender ............................................................... 226
9.4 Economic aspirations: financial investments made ................... 230
9.5 Fulfilling women's social migration aspirations ....................... 244
9.6 Women's position in and versus the community ....................... 255
9.7 Returned migrant women and work ........................................ 257
9.8 Personal gains ....................................................................... 259
9.9 Conclusion ........................................................................... 261

Chapter 10: Conclusions ............................................................. 265
10.1 The pre-migration stage ......................................................... 265
10.2 The migration stage .............................................................. 270
10.3 Post-migration stage: back in Bangladesh ............................... 280
10.4 Towards a new analytical model ............................................ 287

References ............................................................................... 291

Summary .................................................................................. 309

Samenvatting ........................................................................... 313
List of Figures
Figure 2.1: Dual domain embeddedness during migration ......................37
Figure 10.1: Understanding the migration process ..........................288

List of Maps
Map 3.1: South-South East Asia .......................................45
Map 3.2: Bangladesh ..................................................46
Map 3.3: Malaysia ..................................................61

List of Tables:
Table 3.1: Structure of the Bangladeshi economy (% of GDP) ..............47
Table 3.2: Migration by country of employment (1976-2002) ..............50
Table 3.3: Structure of the Malaysian economy (% of GDP) ..........62
Table 3.4: Documented foreign workers in Peninsular Malaysia ..........65
Table 3.5: GDP growth and growth per sector ..........................67
Table 4.1: Fieldwork structuring .......................................79
Table 5.1: Age upon arrival in Malaysia ................................99
Table 5.2: Marital status and average age upon arrival in Malaysia ......100
Table 5.3: Number of children among the Bangladeshi migrant women .100
Table 5.4: Years of schooling among the Bangladeshi migrant women ....101
Table 5.5: Jobs prior to migration .........................................102
Table 5.6: Decision making regarding migration: impact of marital status .103
Table 5.7: Primary motivation for migration ............................104
Table 5.8: Level of education of men and women .........................124
Table 5.9: Men’s primary reason for migration ........................125
Table 5.10: Decision making concerning migration .........................125
Table 6.1: Decision-making process .......................................132
Table 6.2: Primary means by which the fee was financed ..........142
Table 6.3: Primary sources of financing fee (extended) ..................143
Table 6.4: Women’s fee by time of departure for Malaysia .............144
Table 7.1: Companies employing Bangladeshi women ...................152
Table 7.2: Average net monthly earnings after deductions ...........153
Table 7.3: Value of the Malaysian ringgit in Bangladeshi takas ..........162
Table 9.1: Remittances per factory and average number of months spent in Malaysia ...............................................................220
Table 9.2: Allocation of remittances ......................................222
Table 9.3: Decision making concerning the allocation of remittances ....222
Table 9.4: Monthly earnings, living costs and remittances (in ringgits) ...224

List of Boxes:
Box 4.1: Fieldwork experiences ........................................92
Box 9.1: Nazma’s homecoming – I ...................................218
Box 9.2: Nazma’s homecoming – II .................................225
Box 9.3: Nahar’s story – IV ......................................239
Box 9.4: Nahar’s story – I .......................................243
Table of Contents

Box 9.5: Nahar’s story – II .............................................. 248
Box 9.6: Nazma’s homecoming – V ..................................... 259