Acknowledgments

Many people were involved in the genesis and execution of this dissertation, academically or otherwise. Since this dissertation is about games, it seems suitable to categorise my thanks according to the game in which they are due.

The Graduation Game I am indebted to my promotores Paul Vitányi and Peter Grünwald for their guidance, inspiration and support, and most of all for the incredible amount of freedom they gave me, trusting that beauty arises by rigorously pursuing your own interests.

The Publishing Game I could not have written this dissertation without my co-authors Steven de Rooij, Tim van Erven, Paul Vitányi, Edgar Daylight (a.k.a. Karel van Oudheusden), Martin Ziegler, Manfred Warmuth, Jyrki Kivinen, Leen Stougie, Steven Kelk, Peter van der Gulik, and Harry Buhrmann. It was a pleasure writing with you, and I hope I'll have the opportunity to cross pens with you once more.

Symbol Manipulation Games This work was inspired by my past and present colleagues of INS₄/PNA₆ Peter Grünwald, Paul Vitányi, Tim van Erven, Steven de Rooij, Wojciech Kotłowski, Alfonso Martinez, Łukasz Dębowski, Nisheeth Srivastava, Thijs van Ommen and Peter Harremoës. You provided a tantalising and vibrant environment for doing research. You taught, guided and encouraged me. You challenged me, and we sparred, debated and competed. And you valued and recognised my accomplishments. You formed me. I can only hope that I returned the favour.

Physical Games Theory needs to be balanced by practise. Vigorous physical practice, that is. I would like to thank the following sparring partners for keeping me sane: Steven de Rooij (squash), Claas-Willem Visser (climbing and hiking), Sirée Koolen-Wijkstra (fencing, cycling and hiking). Thank you: I needed it, and I greatly enjoyed it!

Social Games To stimulate creativity, one needs to tickle the fantasy. Systematically. I would like to thank the following role players for their fantastic inspiration: The Rotterdam by Night and Albany chronicles, consisting of Maarten Oosten, Julia Krul, Sirée Koolen-Wijkstra and Vincent van der Goes. And the Allansia chronicle, consisting of Csaba, Fedde, Erik, Joseph and Sirée.

Culinary Games I want to thank the ESSLLI cooking club for the delicious dinners, interesting discussions and good company. Thank you Marieke van Erp, Paul Groth, Tikitou de Jager, Olga Grigoriadou and Sirée. And thank you Leonard Hugenholtz and Sandra Klaver and also Mirjam Postma and Bjorn Hondelink.

Curiosity Games What does this button do? Let's push it! Nerdy geeks and geeky nerds that flabbergasted and discombobulated me with simple questions to weird answers and vice versa include Steven de Rooij, Maarten Oosten, Vincent van der Goes and Leonard Hugenholtz.

And last but not least, hors categorie, I would like to thank my wife Siré Koolen-Wijkstra for her love, support, encouragement, strategic advice and endurance during the intense phases of the process. Finally, I am grateful to my parents Ad and Maite Koolen-Disler for their love. Chapter 5 was written in their care, in their beautiful mountain refuge in Suze, Drôme, France.
